

POLICE GRAFTERS ARE GIVEN SENTENCE

LIEUTENANT FIRST TO HEAR SENTENCE TO ATLANTA PRISON

Cincinnati Officers Learn
Prison Terms One By
One From Court

Cincinnati, April 22—Lieutenant Aubrey Houston, commanding a relief at the fourth district police station, and brother of Barney Houston, chief of the Cincinnati fire department, was sentenced to serve 18 months in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, today on the charge of accepting money to protect bootleggers.

Houston is the highest ranking officer of the forty-eight members of the police force who are now being sentenced, one by one, by U. S. District Judge Smith Hickenlooper.

Government investigators declared Lieutenant Houston had accepted $9,000 in graft money. Houston, who pleaded guilty, said this figure had been exaggerated.

Judge Hickenlooper told him the amount made no difference. He scored Houston for setting a bad example to his men.

Louis Sunderman, a member of the flying squad of detectives, who also pleaded guilty, was given the same sentence. It was charged that Sunderman's graft amounted to $17,000.

Forty-eight pair of heavy shoes squeaked painfully as the defendants filed into the courtroom to receive their punishment. In the throng in the corridor were many known bootleggers, handbook men and others who have "done time." Yet the grins of joy on the faces of the men and women who had lived in fear of the "dicks" and "bills" did not appear until after the forty-eight grafters had passed by. A vague premonition that "Lady Luck" might still come to the rescue of the cops and restore to them their power, filled the consciousness of the lawbreakers. The squeaking of the shoes ceased as the officers sat down heavily. Beads of perspiration appeared on many of their foreheads as they waited for Judge Hickenlooper to enter. Some looked around and smiled uneasily at wives, other relatives and friends, who were beginning to occupy seats in the rear of the courtroom.

Following the advice of lawyers, a number of the defendants, wives, brought babies along, in the forlorn hope that the cooing or crying of the tots would soften the court.

"Say, fellows," whispered a pickpocket. "Now these guys up there in front know how it feels to be up against what they handed us!"

One of the attorneys for the policemen went over to the newspaper table.

"It doesn't seem quite right to me, boys," he confided, "to send up these little fellows and let the big criminals go. There are plenty of grafters walking around the streets today who'll never be caught."

ROME IS 2,678 YEARS OLD—CELEBRATES

Rome, April 22—The yearly celebration of the founding of Rome—2,678 years ago, continued today, gaining added significance with new excavations in the Forum of Augustus.

Part of the temple of Mars Ultor was excavated at a depth of twenty feet. Clearing away old and ugly houses brought to light the steps of the temple and the substructure of the northern Stylobate with its low columns and corridor flanked with eight niches, four on a side. The house of the Rhodes Knights also has been revealed. This former home of the oldest order of knightly chivalry, stood north of the temple of Mars. It was built in the early thirteenth and late fifteenth centuries.

Its magnificent loggia will be restored, together with the beautiful interior.

AUTO CLUB TO FIGHT GASOLINE TAX LAW CONSTITUTIONALITY

Secretary Of O. S. A. A. Says
Law Full Of Holes—Will Seek Referendum

Columbus, April 22—Litigation, seeking to have the gasoline tax law providing for a tax of two cents per gallon, on all gasoline sold except for industrial or farm machinery purposes nullified, loomed here today as attorneys for the Ohio State Automobile Association prepared to test the constitutionality of the law in the courts.

C. C. Janes, executive secretary of the association, C. D. Saviers and J. F. Atwood, the association's attorneys, were in Cleveland today in conference with Fred Caley, president and Walter D. Meals, Cleveland attorney.

In a statement issued here, Janes declared:

"The law is so carelessly drawn and has so many holes in it, we believe the courts can do nothing but declare it unconstitutional."

Janes also said that an application for suspension to allow a referendum vote on the law would be a feature of the suit when it reaches the state supreme court.

TWO DAYS TO SENTENCE

Cincinnati, O., April 22—It is estimated that it will require two days to sentence all fifty-nine Cincinnati policemen, detectives and county liquor court agents who have pleaded guilty to accepting money to protect bootleggers. U. S. District Judge Smith Hickenlooper Wednesday began the task. Thirty-eight of the culprits are members of the Cincinnati police force and twenty-one are village "dry" agents.

According to U. S. District Attorney Haveth E. Mau, it will take about fifteen minutes to sentence each prisoner.

LOS ANGELES MOORS SAFELY AT BERMUDA AFTER NIGHT FLIGHT

Navy Dirigible Makes Trip In
Little More Than Eleven
Hours

Washington, April 22—The navy dirigible Los Angeles arrived over Bermuda at 2:10 a.m. after a successful flight from Lakehurst, N. J., according to a radio message received this morning by the navy department.

The dirigible encountered stiff headwinds over the Atlantic which held down its flying time. The big ship made the flight in eleven hours and thirty-two minutes.

The dirigible hovered over the island until daylight before any attempt was made to fasten her to the mooring mast aboard the Dakotah.

The Los Angeles left Lakehurst at 2:38 yesterday. She carried a crew of twenty-eight and about thirty others, including balloonists and army and navy observers. Captain George W. Steele and Commander Jacob Klein were in charge.

WHEELER WILL TAKE STAND

SATISFYING, APPETIZING SALADS CONCOCTED OF FLOWERS AND OTHER THINGS AT COOKING SCHOOL HERE

"Hungry All the Time" Subject of Mrs. Brown-Lewers
At Gazette and Republican School—Crowds
Attend Session Wednesday.

Women in attendance at Mrs. Mary Brown-Lewers' lecture at the Gazette-Republican Cooking School, at McKinley Auditorium, Wednesday afternoon, learned a great deal about how to construct that most fascinating and mysterious part of the meal, which though it bears the simple name of "salad" may contain anything from alligator pears to nuts.

Decorative salads at one time were thought to be the diet of the rich only but Mrs. Brown-Lewers shows women how economically they may be made and at the same time how essential they are to enhance the attractiveness of the simple dinner. More than that, they are a valuable part of the diet from the standpoint of health.

Mrs. Brown-Lewers called the attention of her audiences to the fact that America leads the world in the making of salads. This has been the development of recent years since the subject has been attracting so much attention.

Wednesday afternoon she demonstrated simple salads to be used with the more elaborate dinner. In this lecture she dealt with the ornamental salad to be used with the very simple dinner to give it that appetizing touch which might otherwise be lacking.

She also gave women many new ideas on dairy salads for use as light refreshments. Her floral salad suggested June with its dainty tinted rosebud set in clear gelatine and garnished with delicate fern.

Mrs. Brown-Lewers' lecture subject was "Hungry All the Time" and her menu for the afternoon illustrated food concoctions that are both satisfying and appetizing-looking.

The menu consisted of maple syrup cake, with maple icing; plain pastry, date and coconut pie, vegetable, fruit and flower salads and cream mayonnaise.

Slips containing the recipe for each article of the menu were given each woman attending.

The lecture was preceded by a concert by the O. S. and S. O. Home Band, under the direction of Professor Seall.

Miss Eleanor McDonnell will sing a group of songs before Thursday afternoon's program.

The following women were given baskets of groceries at the Cooking School, Tuesday afternoon, after the lecture and demonstration: Mrs. Lewis F. Drake, 201 Dayton Avenue; Mrs. Frank Owens, Cincinnati Avenue; Miss Leila E. Quinn, North Detroit Street; Mrs. Willa Glass, Wilberforce University; Mrs. Frank Hogue, Chestnut Street; Mrs. J. H. Smith, West Second Street; Mrs. T. W. Conklin, Xenia; Mrs. James Mulren, Xenia, Route 8; Mrs. J. H. McVay, 220 West Third Street.

The school is now half over and there are still many vital problems of the home maker to be discussed. Come early, bring pencil and note paper and feel free to ask questions. Questions are gladly answered by Mrs. Brown-Lewers at the close of each day's lecture. They may either be asked orally or written on slips of paper and passed to the stage.

Another crowded auditorium greeted the lecturer Wednesday.

CATHEDRAL BOMBING WAS MOVE TO THROW OVER GOVERNMENT

Planned to Set Up Soviet
Regime—Most of Leaders
Arrested

Sofia, April 22—A statement from the Bulgarian government issued today, confirmed reports that the cathedral bombing was to be the opening move in a detailed plan for the overthrow of the government. The date for the proclamation of a provisional soviet regime had been set in advance, and is known to the authorities, according to the statement.

The government knows the names of the proposed provisional regime and has arrested most of them, it was said. The government alleged that they had been cooperating with communist organizations in Serbia and Czechoslovakia where Kolaroff, Dimitroff, Dotorloff and Obef, were said to be the leaders.

The government continued its drastic measures to suppress all disturbances. No reign of terror exists nor summary executions held but the government is handling the situation with firmness.

Belgrade, April 22—The Jugo Slav government today issued a statement emphatically denying any intention of invading Bulgaria. Jugo Slavs will continue its peaceful policy, according to the statement.

The statement was in answer to rumors current in Vienna, that the Bulgarian revolts were incited to provoke civil war and thus provide Jugo Slavs with an excuse to invade and occupy the country.

The Vienna rumors said that a Jugo Slav army was ready to march into Bulgaria if the revolts developed into a definite revolutionary movement. It was reported from Bucharest that King Ferdinand and Queen Marie of Roumania had made all arrangements to receive King Boris and the Bulgarian royal family if they should flee from Sofia.

NORMAN THORN GOES TO GALLOWS TO PAY FOR MURDER OF GIRL

Man Who Tried To Solve Love
Tangles By Killing, Smiles
On Scaffold

Wandsworth Prison, London, April 22—Norman Thorn, wealthy young farmer, paid with his life today for his attempt to solve his love tangle by the murder of his sweetheart. He was convicted of slaying Elsie Cameron, pretty London typist, that he might be free to wed Grace Caldwell, his country sweetheart. Thorn was hanged at 8 a. m. in the prison courtyard.

Thorn faltered when he left the death cell, but immediately gained his composure. He was smiling when the black cap was adjusted and stepped out firmly as he was led onto the trap.

Fifteen minutes later, with the execution officially completed, the chaplain and prison officials left the courtyard. Outside the prison gates a meagre crowd waited for news that Thorn had been hanged.

The public had expected he would be executed at 9 a. m. the hour originally set. A half hour before the hanging, a half dozen persons were waiting and at the hour of his death less than a hundred were there.

Shortly before nine, more of the death watchers came. Mothers pushing baby carriages, joined the crowd, only to leave in disappointment when they learned the time of the hanging had been advanced.

Thorn was found guilty of killing the typist, aged 21, in his little home on his poultry farm at Crowborough, near the famous writer of detective stories. It was brought out at the trial that Thorn cut up the body, burned some portions of it and buried the remainder. It was also brought out that Thorn had fallen in love with a rustic beauty of the district, Grace Caldwell, and wanted to marry her but had promised to take Elsie Cameron as his wife.

Thorn was hanged at 8 a. m. in the prison courtyard.

JAMESTOWN PHYSICIAN ARRESTED FOR BREAKING PRESCRIPTION LAW

Charge Physician Gave Detective Too Large Prescription—Prosecutor Gets Allowance To Carry On War On Crime.

Dr. C. R. McConnell, Washington, Street, Jamestown, arrested as an alleged member in the county drive against crime, Wednesday, was held for arraignment in Probate Court April 23 on a charge of unlawfully prescribing intoxicating liquors by Deputy Probate Judge Alagna Hawes Wednesday morning. He gave appearance bond of $500 and was released.

A warrant for McConnell's arrest was sworn out by F. E. Gary, county detective, who it is believed is transferring his efforts from gambling to alleged illicit liquor trafficking. Dr. McConnell, prominent Jamestown physician, is said to be charged with giving Gary, the detective, a prescription for more than one-half pint of whiskey at one time. Dr. McConnell has been practicing medicine in Jamestown two or three years.

DEFENSE TRIES NEW ONSLAUGHT TO BREAK GOVERNMENT'S CASE

Counsel Attacks Story of
Star Federal Witness
In Trial

Great Falls, Mont., April 22—Another onslaught to break down the government's evidence was directed by the defense in federal court here today in the trial of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, for alleged misuse of office. Wheeler himself planned to take the stand to deny the charges.

The defense concentrated chiefly in attacking the testimony of the government's surprise witness, George B. Hayes, New York lawyer. Hayes sprang the big sensation of the trial in testifying to an offer alleged to have been made him by Wheeler in a New York hotel lobby. By this proposal, Hayes said, he was to receive half of Wheeler's fees for representing Wheeler before the interior department in prosecuting claims of Gordon Campbell, Montana oil operator.

With Wheeler's testimony, concluded the court was to recess until Saturday, awaiting the arrival of four new defense witnesses from the east.

They were called in an eleven-hour attempt by the defense to combat Hayes' testimony which Wheeler's attorneys regard as the most damaging offered in the prosecution's case.

Had it not been for Hayes, the defense planned to move for an instructed verdict of acquittal when the government rested.

Edwin S. Booth, formerly solicitor of the interior, already has testified that he never suggested to Hayes that he represent Wheeler. Hayes declared that Booth first made the proposal, and by telephone arranged the New York meeting with Wheeler. Booth denied even calling Hayes, but admitted talking to Hayes in Washington about financing Campbell, from whom Wheeler is accused specifically of receiving $4,000 to handle oil permits before the interior department.

Under order of the court, the prosecution was forced to divulge to the defense letters written by Hayes to Booth. In substance, Hayes in these letters told only of progress he was making in securing backing for Campbell.

Because of the two day recess, it is not expected the trial can be concluded before the middle of the next week.

HARRISON WILL APPEAL ACTION

Will Carry Effort To Block
Sentence On Up

Columbus, O., April 22—Attorneys for Dwight Harrison, Columbus, former official of the defunct R. L. Dollings Company, and now under sentence to serve three years in the Ohio penitentiary for defrauding investors, are preparing an appeal to the United States Supreme Court from the decision of the Ohio supreme court which ruled late Tuesday that Harrison must serve his prison term. The appeal will be based on technicalities and will allege that the charges under which Harrison was convicted are unconstitutional. Harrison's attorneys said.

COOKING SCHOOL TEACHER RINGS BELL FOR SILENCE—WOMEN OBEY

Mrs. Mary Brown-Lewers, lecturer and demonstrator at The Gazette and Republican Cooking School, at the McKinley Auditorium, has a little bell on the table before her which she gently taps when her feminine audience starts to gossip on some phase of the lecture or demonstration. The women are obedient "pupils" for the tinkling of the bell is followed by immediate silence. To satisfy the feminine weakness for talking, however, Mrs. Brown-Lewers occasionally calls a recess and lets her "pupils" talk to their hearts' content.

There's nothing "highbrow" or fancy about the recipes given by Mrs. Brown-Lewers, or in the method she demonstrates in preparing dishes. She is a simple housewife, accustomed to the homey ways in which the Queen of the Kitchen works and the individual methods of doing various tasks. For instance she told Tuesday afternoon's audience that they could mix cake dough with a wooden spoon, a metal spoon or their visions or "budget" of varied incomes to a fine point, and in every family, no matter what the income, placed the expenditure for food, first. The weakness of everyone to give way to personal appetites, is one of the things that make a budget hard, she said.

"Don't take your neighbors in your confidence when you arrange a budget," Mrs. Brown-Lewers warned her audience Tuesday. "Have occasional family conferences. In doubt about the budget, go to your bank for help, and suggestions. The budget is a matter of personal labor."

Mrs. Brown-Lewers was introduced Tuesday by Mrs. Pearl Wolf, instructor in home economics at Central High School. Girls of Mrs. Wolf's class are assisting in the school, by receiving the women and presenting them with programs at the door. Each girl looks like a juvenile housewife, with white cap and apron.

BRUTAL MURDER COMES TO LIGHT

Chicago, April 22—The murder which the finding of a young woman's torso in a catch basin, near the Budlong golf course here yesterday revealed, was established as one of the most diabolical crimes in Chicago's history today.

An autopsy revealed the murderer not only had crudely hacked off the head, arms and legs but had removed the vital organs through a ruthless slash in the side.

The medical examination, revealing that the victim had been aged between 22 and 30, definitely precluded the possibility that she might have been Anna Chamales, 15, missing since last June.

CUBAN WONDER WILL MEET SAILOR JACK STANLEY AT EAGLES

Local wrestling fans will be treated to several good mat bouts at another wrestling show to be held at the Eagles Hall Saturday night, April 25, under the auspices of the Eagles Lodge.

Lee Umbles, the "Cuban Wonder", said to be the 145 pound wrestling champion of Cuba, will again display his wares to local fans in the main bout with Sailor Jack Stanley, of Newark, O., claimant to the welterweight championship of the Pacific Coast.

The Cuban needs no introduction locally, because of his performance here at a recent Eagle's show, and Stanley will probably be put to the supreme test in order to defeat the pride of Cuba. The match is the headline of the show and will be the best two falls out of three.

Gene Wead, a local lightweight wrestling artist, will wrestle one fall with Strangler, Dick of Columbus in the semi-final. Speedy Crawford, local welterweight and Young Tex, of Columbus will stage the preliminary of one fall.

The show is scheduled to begin at 8:30 o'clock. Admission is 75 cents.

Robertson and Tobin obliged with homers with men on bases and the Browns got a 9 to 8 decision over the White Sox. Gaston fanned five men in the first two innings but couldn't stand prosperity. Sisler hit safely in his seventh straight game.

First thing you know, some bright gent is going to find a new name for Connie Mack's $100,000 purchase. "Lemon" Groves will do until a better one turns up. Starting his third game for the Athletics, Groves again blew the works by his wildness and the Senators won, 7 to 2.

Sam Jones stepped out of character with three hits and a stolen base while the Yankees won in a romp from the Red Sox, 5 to 1. Pincich's homer cheating Samuel out of a shutout.

The Indians succumbed to the inevitable and their first defeat when Pothergill's single in the eighth staked the Tigers to the winning run, 4 to 3. Fewster's wild throw gave the Tigers three runs in the second.

SATURDAY DIAMOND LEAGUE IS REVIVED AT TUESDAY MEET

The old Saturday Afternoon Baseball League was voted into existence again Tuesday night at a meeting of representatives of four local companies.

A schedule of eighteen games is being arranged with the first games to be played May 2, at the Washington Park diamond.

The league is composed of four teams representing the Xenia Shoe factory, the R. A. Kelly Company, the Hoover and Allison Company and the Pennsylvania Railroad.

In organizing their teams the different members of the league will not be confined to selecting material from their own companies alone. It was decided, but may sign up any player in the county. In this manner each team in the league will be able to present a good lineup in regular games, it is believed.

Complete plans for the opening of the season will be perfected at another meeting to be held at the American Legion rooms Friday night at 7:30 o'clock. Representatives of each team are asked to be present.

COUNTRY CLUB MAY HIRE "PRO" AS CLUB GOLF INSTRUCTOR

The proposition of obtaining the services of a professional golf player to instruct members of the Xenia Country Club in the rudiments of the game, was discussed at the first regular meeting of the new board of directors of the club in the offices of the Home Building and Savings Company Tuesday night.

PLAINTIFF HEARS ALL WITNESSES IN LARGE DAMAGE CASE

The plaintiff finished his list of witnesses at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning the case of Mrs. Logan Nickell, administratrix of the estate of Volney Nickell deceased against Lincoln Funderburgh, former sheriff of Greene County which began in Common Pleas Court Tuesday.

The plaintiff is suing for $25,000 damages based on the fatal shooting of Volney Nickell by a sheriff's posse which fired upon boys playing pranks along the Wilmington Pike in September 1922. In a previous trial the plaintiff was awarded $5,000 damages, but the Court of Appeals found error in the charge and the charge set aside the verdict and remanded the case for new trial.

The jury was taken to the scene of the shooting Tuesday. Witnesses called by the plaintiff were Dr. R. L. Haines, coroner; W. L. Davis, county surveyor; Clarence Keiter, Warren Middleton, Dorsey Nickell who were with Volney Nickell at the time of the shooting; Frank Weaver, William Haworth, Roma Humphrey and the sheriff of Clinton County.

Witnesses subpoenaed for the defense were: William Burns, Dayton; Gus A. Segritz, Dayton; A. J. McClure, Springfield; Pearl McClure, Springfield; Dr. P. D. Espey, Dr. W. A. Galloway, J. E. Jones, Patrolman Charles Simms, Prosecutor J. C. Marshall, L. F. Cleveland, R. R. Grieve, Lloyd McClanahan, Mrs. Boland, the court stenographer of Madison County and Elias Quinn.

Evans and B. H. Little, C. L. Darlington. Xenia and Con J. Matern, Dayton, are attorneys for the plaintiff and Marcus Shoup, F. L. Johnson and Harry D. Smith represent the defendant.

ORVILLE JEFFRIES IS GIVEN SENTENCE AFTER GUILTY PLEA

Orville Jeffries, Cedarville, who was absolved of connection with the burglary and robbery of the Ross Store Company, of Jamestown by the confession of Urshel White, Springfield, was arraigned before J. E. Jones, Justice of the Peace Tuesday afternoon on a charge of receiving stolen goods and fined $25 and costs and sentenced to thirty days in the County Jail. He pleaded guilty.

A charge against him of burglary and larceny will probably be dismissed, it is said. William Jeffries, his cousin, also recently charged with burglary and larceny will be arraigned before Magistrate Jones later in the week on a charge of receiving stolen goods.

The Jeffries cousins were freed of implication in a series of Greene County burglaries by the confession of Urshel White, 19, arrested Sunday in Gallipolis, O., which implicated himself and three other men, but stated that William and Orville Jeffries had only received the stolen goods and did not participate in the robberies.

Authorities are looking for the other member of the alleged gang of hold-up men.

WAITER SCALDED BY BOILING COFFEE

John Mast, waiter in an Urbana restaurant, has lost his sense of hearing in his left ear and the right ear has become affected, as the result of coffee boiling over in a huge tank and pouring over his head several weeks ago.

The coffee ran into his left ear, destroying the ear drum and impairing the hearing in the other ear. Erysipelas has resulted from the burn on his face.

TRAFFIC SURVEY OF OHIO VALLEY MADE IN RIVER INTERESTS

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 22.—A traffic survey of the Ohio Valley has been begun by the Inland Waterways Corporation, the government corporation which under the Secretary of War operates the Federal barge line on the Mississippi and Warrior Rivers, to determine the advisability of extending their common carrier water service up the Ohio and upper Mississippi Rivers.

The work is being done under a special committee from the board of advisors of the corporation, of which Wilmer M. Jacoby of Pittsburgh and Halleck W. Seaman of Chicago are the members. To Mr. Jacoby has been assigned the task of making a study of the Ohio river situation and he is now engaged in corresponding with chambers of commerce, boards of trade, manufacturers' associations, agricultural groups and river development bodies in the Ohio Valley to enlist their cooperation in the work of estimating the probable tonnage that could be moved by the barge line which offers shippers a freight rate on all commodities that is 20 per cent less than corresponding rail rates. The work of studying the situation in the Upper Mississippi Valley is being done by Mr. Seaman. The entire survey is under the immediate direction of Brig. Gen. T. Q. Ashburn, executive head of the service, and upon its result depends the decision of the war department as to extending the line into either or both streams.

In letters being sent out by Mr. Jacoby this week, to commercial, manufacturing and agricultural organizations he states that it is the purpose of the survey to find out the actual traffic and terminal situation through out the Ohio valley so that accurate data will be in the hands of the special committee when the canalization of the Ohio river is completed upon which to base a decision regarding the extension of the government barge line's common carrier service into that stream.

"This service," says Mr. Jacoby's letter to trade bodies, "affords a dependable trunk-line waterways facility for moving all manner of freight upon rates established by the Interstate Commerce Commission at 80 per cent of the rail rates, thus offering a saving of 20 per cent to shippers making use of it. In co-operation not in competition with the rail lines, and as a supplement to their services, it is efficiently serving an extended territory in the Mississippi Valley in the economical distribution of all manner of commodities."

Mr. Jacoby stated today that the extension of the service into the Ohio river cannot be considered before completion of the lock and dam system, which is promised for the year 1930 by the United States engineers, and that whether or not a favorable recommendation can be made to the Secretary of War depends entirely upon the enthusiasm and interest displayed by potential shippers and receivers of freight throughout the region of the Ohio Valley and contiguous territory. Mississippi Valley business men are enthusiastic boosters for the service he stated, because they can count in hundreds of thousands of dollars the freight savings the line has procured for them.

COUNTY DEMURRER TO MANDAMUS CASE OVERRULED TUESDAY

A demurrer to the mandamus action of the State of Ohio, ex rel Attorney General G. C. Crabbe, against R. O. Wead, Greene County Auditor, was overruled by the Supreme Court in Columbus Tuesday, according to Columbus advices.

Mandamus action was brought by the state against the county auditor's office to compel payment of alleged unpaid bills for commitment of dependent children to the state board of charities during the administration of Judge J. Carl Marshall in Juvenile Court.

A demurrer to the petition was filed in the Supreme Court by Attorney C. L. Darlington, representing Greene County, several months ago, but a decision on the action had been repeatedly delayed, it was believed, members of the supreme court disagreeing on the demurrer, when a vote was taken.

County Auditor Wead refused to pay the bill for commitment of children to the state board, a number of months ago contending the bill was too high. The county contends in resisting the Supreme Court action, that suit for collection should have been brought in the local Common Pleas Court.

Mr. Rowe gained his experience while associated with the local club.

World Famous Eyrie Destroyed

The world famous eagle's nest at Vermillion, Ohio, on whose site eagles have lived for over a century, has been partially blown down in a severe storm. Students of bird life have been greatly interested in this eagle's nest, for it was the fifth that had been built in that locality within a hundred years. Ornithologists wondered whether this misfortune, coupled with the fact that a short time previously a farmer had shot and killed a large male eagle near there, would cause the birds to quit the locality. A short time after the male eagle was killed its mate departed, only to return soon with a new mate. Hardly had their old nest been destroyed when they began working feverishly on a new one, which is five feet across, four feet high and seventy feet from the ground.

GUARDIAN NAMED FOR POISONER OF FOURTEEN PEOPLE

Medina, O., April 22.—Arthur D. Ayler, manager of the Medina Telephone Company, has been appointed guardian of Mrs. Martha Wise, confessed poisoner of fourteen persons, three of whom died, including her mother, niece and nephew. The guardian was asked by Mrs. Wise's brother-in-law, Merton M. Adams, after the woman gave an order to her attorney Joseph Pritchard of Cleveland for $1800 she had on deposit in a Medina bank. During the hearing Tuesday, Pritchard called his client "the craziest person on the American continent." This was the first mention of the slayers insanity in court. None of the witnesses would admit she was insane and Dr. Albert Wood of Brunswick, Wis. family physician, declared her perfectly sane.

The trial for murder will open May 4 and it is believed the defense will be insanity.

FINED ON CHARGE
Robert Haerr, Osborn, was fined $25 and costs by Mayor H. E. Frahn, of Osborn Monday afternoon on a charge of striking an arresting officer. He was arrested Sunday by Assistants, Marshal Albert Jolley. Jolley had demanded that the proper license plates be placed on an automobile which was in charge of Haerr's young son. One of the plates had been temporarily removed, it is said.

HANDS-OFF NATURES BEAUTY

CREAM-WHITE and pink tinged blooms crown the branchlets of the Dogwood bush while the flaming color of the Redbud along the hillside presents a picture of loveliness that brings forth the admiration of all lovers of the out of doors. Thousands are now driving through the open country where tree, shrub and flower have sprung into new life. If the Dogwood and the Redbud could tremble with fear they would do so for the annual assault is now on. It is the battle of the springtime between the wildbush, struggling for growing beauty, and the citizen—the motorists and the "hikers"—stripping branches of this beauty only to have the flowers quickly fade and to throw the bedraggled remains by the roadside.

In some states campaigns have been conducted for the purpose of educating the public in the idea of conserving the blooming trees, shrubs and wildflowers as in the years to come future generations will thus be enabled to enjoy these beauties of nature as we today enjoy them. It is to be hoped that such efforts will become nation-wide. All that is needed is to teach the lesson that to enjoy the Dogwood and the Redbud and the many other things that make the open country a veritable park, they must be left for all to enjoy. In this the Boy Scouts and the Girl Scouts, with their training in the love of the out-of-doors and its natural wild life, could do much towards the prevention of this deplorable destruction by not only refraining from ruthlessly tearing branches from the trees and shrubs but also asking that their parents and friends follow their example.

Both Dogwood and Redbud are among those blossoms that fade the quickest and are almost valueless by the time they are transported to one's home; whose natural beauty prospers only in their natural state. Let's keep "hands off" and get others to do the same.

COUNTS AND NO-ACCOUNTS

ACCORDING to the Paris correspondent of a New York daily, a statement attributed to President Coolidge to the effect that former Premier Herriott's troubles came from inherited financial difficulties, and expressing great sympathy for the fallen Premier, "has caused an exceedingly unpleasant impression in many quarters of the French capital." Too bad! Too bad!

President Coolidge made no official statement of this kind. If he said such a thing in private conversation, to be snapped up by a reporter and shot over the wire, he was only expressing a personal opinion, and every American is entitled to that privilege.

European statesmen generally have not hesitated to express their opinions freely and publicly concerning American policies and government—indeed going to the extent of interfering in our domestic questions. Ever since the Armistic this country has been overrun with European statesmen and near-states, counts and no-accounts, who have entertained us with recipes for government and belabored us for failure to conform to their views. We have taken them good-naturedly, extended our hospitality, and calmly pursued our American way. Certainly President Coolidge was competent to make the statement attributed to him, having himself "inherited financial difficulty" of several unnecessary billions of debts from the Democratic administration.

THE WARNING

Time was I could have run the mile.
Or, hatless, braved the summer sun.
I had the boy's wide-stretching smile,
His health and appetite for fun;
I knew not what it meant to be
Too tired to take my turn at bat.
But now my doctor says to me:
"You're much too old for things like that!"

I've romped through many a summer day

And never seemed to pause for breath,
But now my love of honest play
Is clouded by the thought of death,
I still could climb an apple tree,
Hang by my legs or skin the cat.
But "don't, my doctor says to me,
You're much too old for things like that!"

Time was I ate with keen delight
Green fruit, or ripe, or cake or pie.
Without one thought that with the night
Perhaps in agony I'd die;
But round about me now I see
Terrors that wait to stretch me flat.
A solemn doctor warning me:
"You're much too old for things like that!"

Time was I trod youth's merry stage
And bartered strength for sport and fun,
But now I've reached that grim old age
When all exertion I must shun;
Upon the side lines now I stay,
Creaky of joint and growing fat.
Condemned to hear the doctor say:
"You're much too old for sports like that!"

cause the heat, in processing, penetrates more quickly to the center of these small jars than to the larger, quart-size jars. I shall also advocate using the intermittent, or Three-Period Method for these four difficult vegetables, rather than the One-Period Cold Pack Method, for this reason: Processing the jar for one hour should suffice to destroy all bacteria in the vegetative form; then, by cooling the jar rapidly to room-temperature and allowing it to stand overnight, opportunity is given for surviving spores to "sprout" into the vegetative form; after which the second hour-long period of processing will kill all of the young, tender cells which have just germinated from the spores; the third hour of processing catches newly germinated cells from any spores which may have failed to germinate within the first intermission.

Before beginning our canning work, it is well to see what the latest United States Government Bulletin on this subject has to say. Miscellaneous Circular Number 24 (which you can obtain by writing to The Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. and enclosing five cents), advises that all vegetables except tomatoes be canned only in a pressure cooker; but that the water bath canner may be used for fruits and tomatoes (which are more acid), if you desire.

Now, the question is, will housewives who, in past years, have had good luck with all vegetables, using their wash-boiler as a home-made water bath outfit, go out and buy pressure canners, this summer? I do not think so. Of course the above-quoted Government Bulletin is dependable. But the average housewife cannot afford to buy new equipment on short notice, especially if she has had good results with equipment on hand.

So during the coming months of the canning season, I shall give directions for using both the pressure canner and the hot-water bath wash-boiler canner for all vegetables. This will satisfy the housewife who wishes to be doubly safe by buying a pressure canner; and it will also satisfy the little bride who would be able to do no canning if she could not economize by using her clothes-boiler as a canner—and "take a chance" that she would have as good luck as many other housewives have had in the past by canning all their vegetables with this homely equipment.

In using the wash-boiler outfit for the four most difficult vegetables to can (asparagus, peas, corn and beans—both lima and string) I should advise the use of only pint-size jars be-

BIOGRAPHY

There is no story so full of all that life is as the life of a human being. History is but collected stories of men and women who did their separate jobs.

When we read of bravery and the exhibition of fine strength by others we are in turn inspired. Thought and action, each in turn, melt into the circle of time which softens every harsh edge of life.

If we couldn't learn that the virtues of life laid so well, then we would all too often fall into the cheap and worthless offerings of those who prey upon all virtue.

But biography explains, illumines and marks out paths that any one of us may profit from.

And where that man or woman has been stirring figure in a troubled period, how interesting and helpful and thrilling to read of his or her every move.

Whether writer, statesman, reformer, artist or merchant, there is that same fascination for facts and incidents that crowd about that busy life. And then, there is the background for every thought or action on the part of that one who forms the kernel of the story.

I find my interest always increased after I have read the life of my favorite writer, artist or hero.

You have to know the source of an idea or thought before you can honestly appraise it.

When I learned of the long suffering and great courage of a son, the naturalist, I took new interest in his love of all beauty and of tenderness toward the birds and all mammals of the earth. And in every story of his I see him—the big, the brave, the full of heart, the gentle giant!

In times of particular discouragement, get hold of a good biography and read it. And if you read between the lines, life is quite sure to soften much for you.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Mr. Joseph F. Glus writes, "In the past 20 years I have been constantly troubled with constipation. Every remedy I tried would work O. K. for a while—but soon failed. The only remedy I have been able to use steadily with good results have been Carter's Little Liver Pills. I don't guess when I take them—I know I'm going to feel relieved." At all Druggists.

WAR RELICS WILL BE AVAILABLE FOR OHIO CITIES, IS LEARNED

Ohio is soon to get her share of the physical spoils of the late war with Germany. Since the Armistice, officials of the war department at Washington have been busy sorting and separating captured war material and preparing it for the various states of the Union.

Sixty carloads of equipment used on the western front by Hindenburg, Ludendorff and other German leaders, will be distributed among the cities of the Buckeye state.

The equipment will be shipped direct to Columbus to Camp Perry, which will be used as a central distribution point, from which smaller shipments will be made to cities.

The Ohio Archaeological and Historical society has never received its share of the spoils of war and it is expected that the society will be given first choice of this equipment and it will be placed in the new World War wing at the Ohio State University.

Contained in the shipment will be specimens of body armor, bayonets, canteens, helmets, lances and rifles, numbering into thousands. Nearly 200 machine guns will be in the collection, one fifty-seven millimeter trench mortar and one anti-tank gun, which were considered rarities by the Yanks who made the captures.

Nearly a thousand swords and sabers of various kinds will be in the collection and among the heavier equipment will be one French 75, converted into an anti-aircraft gun by the Germans after capture.

A number of heavy field pieces will be sent to Ohio, including fourteen of the famous German "77s" and one rare gun of the collection will be an Austrian "88" the most feared field-piece on the western front, because of its ability to project two shells almost simultaneously. Ohio will get fifteen howitzers of the 105 millimeter type varying in construction. There will be five 120 millimeter guns and sixteen 150 millimeter howitzers of various types. Sixteen of the famous Minnewerfers or "min" throwers will also be in the collection.

The allocation of these trophies will be made by Governor Donahay after the Archaeological and Historical Society has chosen its display for the state museum.

FEDERAL GRAND JURY IN SESSION AGAIN ON LIQUOR LEAKAGE

Mrs. Willebrandt In Hurried Trip To Cleveland To Aid Probers

Cleveland, O., April 22.—Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant United States attorney general and Oliver Pagan, government indictment expert, are expected to be in the jury room today when the second special federal grand jury deliberates further on the leakage of liquor from the Hayner distillery at Troy.

Mrs. Willebrandt made a hurried trip to Cleveland, from St. Louis to attend the opening session, while Pagan arrived as unexpectedly from Washington. Both played an important part in the initial investigation which resulted in the indictment of ten persons and upset liquor enforcement forces in Ohio.

At least twelve witnesses will be summoned to testify in the present probe, including Abe Ungerleider, whose testimony paved the way to the first ten indictments, it was learned.

The objective of the probing body is to disclose the "higher ups" who were the actual brains of the diversion of thousands of gallons of bonded liquor from the Hayner distillery into bootleg channels, according to statements.

DECLARED DEAD MANY TIMES BUT IS STILL ALIVE SAYS MURRAY

St. Louis, April 22.—James Murray, of St. Louis, says that, while the erroneous report of Mark Twain's death was "greatly exaggerated" once, reports of his own demise have been "horribly distorted" 11 times. Bearing a seemingly charmed life, Murray, who is fifty years old, has survived bullets, a fall of 170 feet, numerous operations and the passing of a heavy motor truck over his body.

Because of his evident immunity from death, physicians call him the "miracle man." His case has attracted surgeons and scientists from various parts of America and also from Europe; and, it is said, he receives considerable remuneration for subjecting himself to pictures and granting interviews to those who would endeavor to determine why he is not numbered among the dead.

According to Murray, his first escape from death occurred at Paducah, Ky., many years ago, when a rope supporting a scaffold on a standpipe that he was painting gave way, hurling him to the roof of a shed 170 feet below. Bleeding and crushed he was taken to a morgue. He said he was perfectly cognizant of what was happening, but was paralyzed and could not make known to the attendants that he still lived. After several hours of both mental and physical torture, during which he had visions of being lowered into an untimely grave, he suddenly regained the use of his legs and kicked the sheet off his body, to the astonishment of the morgue employees.

His body shattered and nerves palpitating from his harrowing experience, Murray spent the greater part of the next three years in hospitals. During this time he submitted to numerous operations and six times was placed behind the hospital death screen in the belief that the coming of the Grim Reaper was but a matter of minutes. He finally gained in health and moved to Mount Carmel, Ill.

One day he strolled into the railroad depot at Mount Carmel, when a man rushed up behind him and began to shoot.

"The first bullet tore out my right eye, after passing through my head," said Murray. "I fell to the floor, but did not lose consciousness. I could see out of my remaining eye until it filled with blood."

"Seeing that I could still move, the fellow placed his pistol close to my body and fired again. This bullet struck me in the shoulder, coursed through my body and lodged at the base of my spine. It is still there."

"Again I was paralyzed. I was unable to move or talk, and the blood blinded me. They carried me into a room and called the sheriff and the coroner. I heard them say my brain was oozing from my head."

"Then more voices were heard. Someone asked the coroner if I was 'done for.' The coroner replied in the affirmative, and for the second time I heard myself pronounced officially dead. The mental agony was stifling. I had to make them acquainted with my plight in some manner. I think I finally wiggled my toes. Anyway, they learned I was alive, and I was rushed to a hospital at Evansville, Ind."

At Evansville surgeons removed three bullets from Murray and patched his skull together. During all this time Murray retained consciousness.

Although surviving a second time after his life was despaired of, he was left a cripple.

While attempting to negotiate a busy intersection here, he was struck by a heavy truck, which after dragging him for a considerable distance, passed over his prostrate body. He was pronounced dead by the coroner and again removed to the marble "cooling slab" of the morgue, only to come out of his experience alive and able to tell the world how it feels to dispute the right of way of a juggernaut. "Again many operations were necessary before Murray could be up and on his own again; but a happy disposition and wonderful physical vigor kept him alive."

Although badly battered and a confirmed invalid, Murray holds a cheerful outlook on the world in general.

X-Ray Photos Sent by Wire

The possibility of almost instantaneous diagnosis of an injury by specialists a great distance from the patient was demonstrated by the receipt at the offices of the Victor X-Ray Company, in Chicago, of an X-ray photograph of a person's hand that had been sent over the telegraph wires of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company from New York. The actual time of sending was about seven minutes.

POSTPONE HEARING IN PROBATE COURT

Hearing in Probate Court of Albert Kendrick, colored, East Church Street, rural mail carrier of the Xenia Postoffice, on a charge of operating an auto while intoxicated, and Lester Roberts, colored, this city, on a charge of intoxication was postponed Wednesday by Judge S. C. Wright until sometime next week because of an over-crowded docket. They were to have been arraigned Wednesday.

The pair was arrested Monday night, when a machine in which they were riding was said to have crashed into a car driven by H. Bulter, Dayton on the Dayton Pike at Treblein, damaging the former's car. Counsel for Kendrick and Roberts denies their clients had intoxicating liquor, claiming bottles confiscated contained rheumatism medicine purchased by Kendrick. Each was released on $500 appearance bond.

Health Hints
by the Father of Physical Culture

Just as life is impossible without vitalized blood, so is health impossible without blood that possesses necessary elements for health. And it follows just as logically that one's vitality will be in exact ratio to the quality of his blood.

All of the tissues of our flesh and bones are made up of infinitely small cells—so small, in fact, that hundreds of them if massed would be invisible across the table. Each cell is born, lives and dies by itself. As fast as a cell dies—a new cell is supplied to take its place. Exercise, even of the slightest, such as opening or closing the hand, uses up the energy material stored up in cells. Any exercise, or even thinking, causes the death of some cells, and Nature immediately supplies new cells to take the place of those that are defunct. One of the important benefits of bodily exercise is that it causes the destruction or death of many old-but-exhausted cells, which in turn, are replaced by cells that are full of life—vitality.

But the cells die, too, in a body that is actually without motion, in a body whose brain is in a state of complete lethargy. The only difference is that in the inactive body the cells do not die as soon as they should nor are the new cells by which they are replaced as healthy as they should be.

All of this repair work in the body is done by the blood. That fluid carries to all of the tissues of the body the fresh matter that is to build up new, vitalized cells in the place of those that are dying. This repair material is secreted from the food that is digested in the stomach and in the intestines. Hence the need of the most nourishing of foods. Improper food furnishes but poor repair material. That which goes into the stomach and is digested becomes the actual, living body. In this connection I cannot but refer once more to the value of adopting, if not wholly, then partly an uncooked or natural diet. Cooking destroys to a great extent, and sometimes entirely, the cell-life of the food intended to nourish the body. It is reasonable then that this devitalized or dead cell matter will never furnish material of a suitable kind for building up or even repairing the body.

Girl Couldn't Stand Clothes To Touch Her

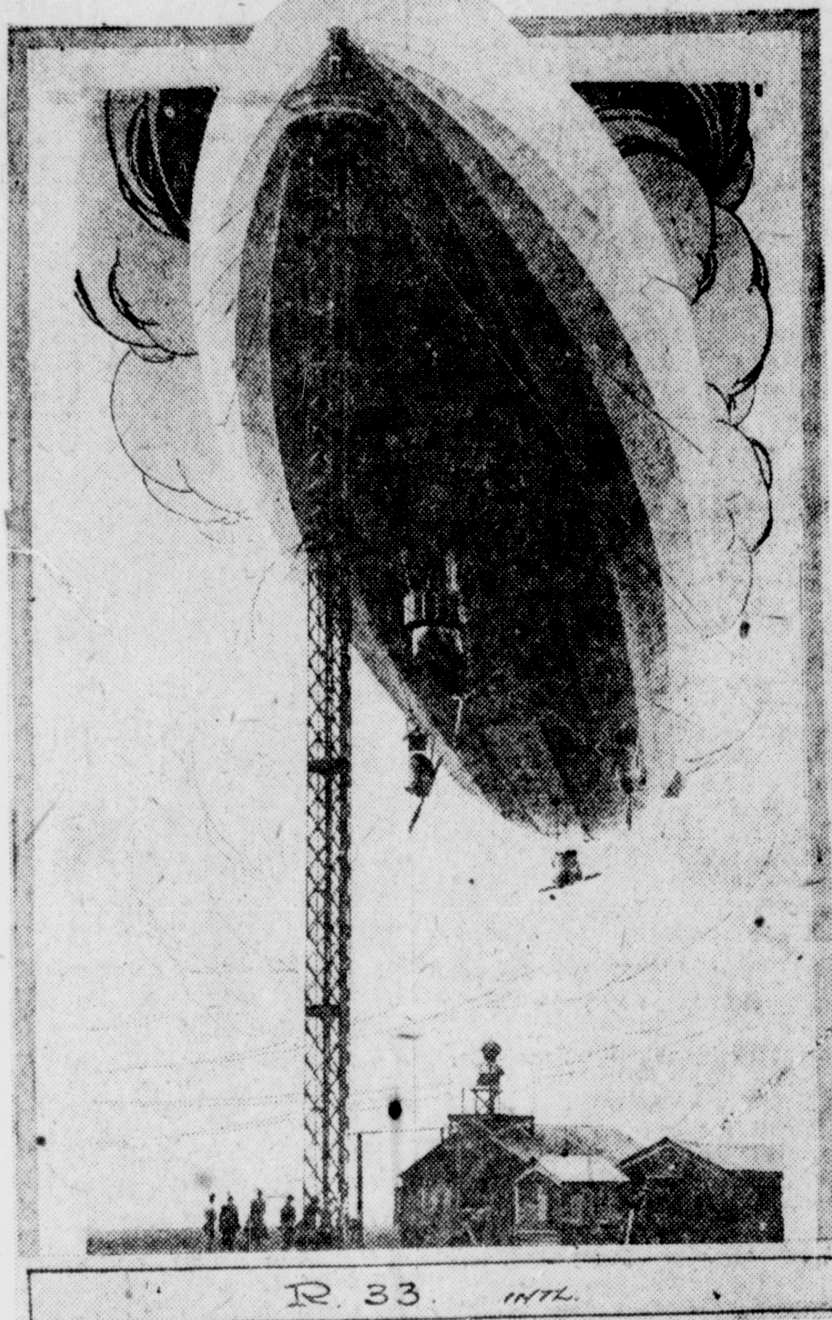

"My father got me a bottle of May's Wonderful Remedy for stomach trouble and I am feeling so much better since taking it. My stomach was so painful I couldn't stand my clothes to touch me." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Sayre & Hemphill, and druggists everywhere. adv

R-33 Breaks Loose in Storm

The British Zeppelin, R-33, sister ship of the R-34, first dirigible to make a round trip across the Atlantic, broke loose from her mooring mast at Pulham, Norfolk, Eng., during a terrific gale, and was swept over the North Sea. The accident was almost identical with that sustained by the American dirigible Shenandoah, which was torn from its mooring mast at the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J. The R-33, which has been undergoing extensive alterations for a year, was shortly to have been flown to India. She is pictured here moored to the very mast from which she broke loose. There were twenty men on board.

Cheer up, Ed—things aren't as bad as they look to you right now. Many hundreds of skinny, gaunt, emaciated men looked even worse than you do till someone told them about McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets (the new way to take Cod Liver Oil) and how it would put pounds of good firm, healthy flesh on their bones in just a few weeks.

MODISH MITZI—Dad Has A Fight On His Hands

By JAY V. JAY

Mitzi is particularly demure. Or perhaps it is the effect of her little felt hat and choker collar of fox fur. At least Dad had no suspicion of her good intentions when she asked him to take a stroll with her.

Something has happened, though, for here is Dad explosively indignant. The question seems to be: "Is he to be allowed to buy his own clothes or is he not?" The answer is, he is not, although he does very well.

They compromise and Mitzi buys him some new ties and handkerchiefs. They are all made to match—handkerchief, bow-knot tie and four-in-hand. All made of the same tiny-figured foulard silk. The reason for all this—is that Dad is expecting a guest and Mitzi has decided to be sure he does himself credit. He will buy this hat, too—because Mitzi thinks he is such a dear and looks so handsome. Besides it is a good hat!

Some improvements in frying

BY MRS. MARY BROWN-LEWERS

Mrs. Brown-Lewers is conducting the popular Gazette-Republican Cooking School classes. In this article Mrs. Brown-Lewers explains how she fries food so deliciously, and gives four valuable recipes.

Whenever I think of the frying pan, I think of Crisco, the digestible vegetable shortening and cooking fat—for I have found Crisco as big a help in my work (especially frying) as the frying pan is.

With-Crisco I can fry everything without any smoke. When I am through I can save every drop of the Crisco for the next fry, no matter what it is, because Crisco doesn't absorb the taste of foods cooked in it. You would never know it was used before.

And I have found that the foods I fry in Crisco are the tastiest I have ever eaten—the most attractive, too. They are never greasy either, as Crisco doesn't stick to the foods. It simply cooks them in a delicious way as any of my recipes below will show you. For the same reasons I always use Crisco for deep frying.

As a matter of fact, I use Crisco for all my work in my cooking classes. My Crisco pie-crusts are always light and flaky. I like Crisco for cakes, too, because they come out even and whole and never fall. Almost everyone who tastes them thinks they are made with butter.

Hashed Brown Potatoes

(With or without green peppers)

Delicious either way and you can fry them to a lovely golden brown in Crisco without smoke or scorching.

6 medium size cold boiled potatoes
3 raw green peppers
Crisco
Salt and pepper

Chop potatoes fine, season with salt and pepper. Remove seeds and stems from peppers. Wash, drain and chop fine. Mix with potatoes. Put in enough Crisco to completely cover the bottom of the frying pan. Heat slowly. When hot add potatoes and cook slowly, stirring occasionally with a fork. When partly brown fold into omelet shape on one side of the frying pan. Fry until a rich brown. Turn out on platter, keeping the omelet shape.

Fish

(5 New Hints)

- 1 Use enough Crisco to partly cover the fish
- 2 Fry slowly and do not turn until almost done
- 3 Turn only once

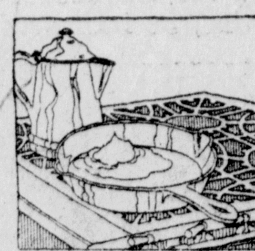

Fried without smoke; fried without wasting left over Crisco; fried without breaking. Don't be afraid to use plenty of Crisco. It won't be wasted even when fish is fried in it. Simply strain it back into the can and use it again.

Clean the fish, leaving it whole or cut in steaks. Wash in cold water and dry in a towel. Dust with salt and pepper, roll in flour or cornmeal, and put into the frying pan when the Crisco is hot. Use a pancake turner to turn. Garnish with parsley and lemon.

How to fry without smoke:

1 Put Crisco into cold frying pan. To thoroughly cook the food (for example, a fish) without smoke or scorching, fry slowly, using enough Crisco to partly cover it. It will not require the constant attention frying does when only a little fat is used. The Crisco will not be wasted. You can use it again for frying other things.

2 Put frying pan over low heat. As soon as Crisco is melted put in a small piece of bread. As soon as bread starts to brown put in the fish.

3 Cook slowly until fish is nearly done, then turn to brown the other side. With plenty of Crisco in the pan the fish is easily turned without breaking, if you wait until it is almost done.

4 Strain the Crisco into an empty can and use it for the next thing you want to fry. No one will know you have fried fish in it.

LEMON JUICE WHITENS SKIN

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quart-er-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier. Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

Freaks of Noted Disasters

RUNAWAY houses, pursued and recaptured by swift motor boats; children asleep on a mattress blown high into a tree; a squawking rooster jammed first into a water pitcher; herds of cattle blown across a wide bay; a field of corn completely mowed by flying iron—

These are some of the authentic freaks of disasters. They will seem incredible only to those who have not been through the unforgettable experience of a tornado, hurricane or flood. Some of the strangest phenomena on record have resulted from tornadoes, those gigantic whirling dervishes of the sky whose terrific force throws buildings about as a boy throws pebbles.

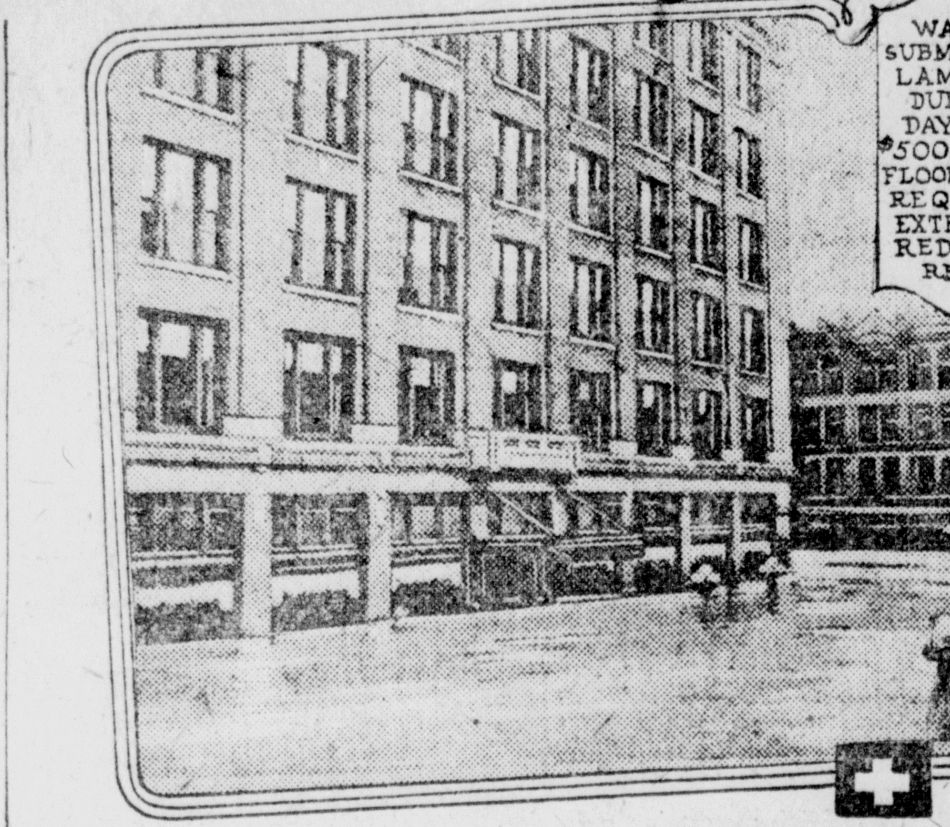

In the administration of the relief task following all major disasters in recent years, workers of the American Red Cross have witnessed the strangest of happenings as a result of the unleashing of nature's mighty forces. Often these workers are the first outside aid to arrive on the scene and are personal witnesses of events that would seem rightfully to belong only in the realm of fiction.

Every one of the strange happenings recounted in this narrative has either been directly witnessed by Red Cross Relief workers or else bear the stamp of verity given by meticulous investigation. Henry M. Baker, National Director of Red Cross Disaster Relief, has personally interviewed most of the persons involved.

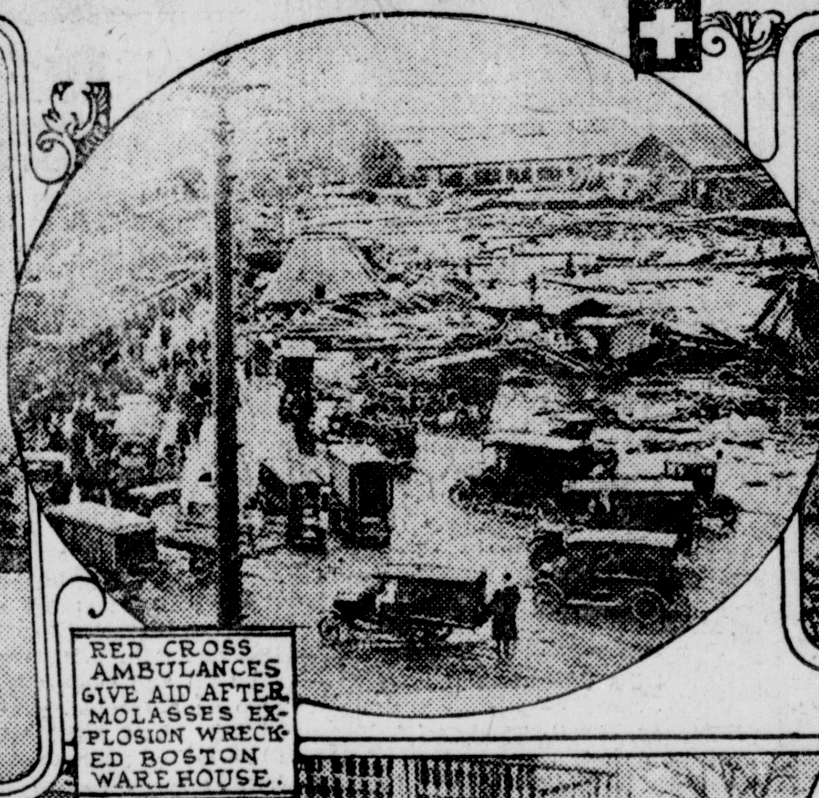

One victim of a tornado's wildest whims was an old Italian named Tony, who ran a fruit stand in Atlanta, Texas. Tony had been picked up in the giant arms of the great storm, carried through the air a quarter of a mile and then dropped feet first into a well. That would have been the end of the story had not one of those strange coincidences happened that often attend the passing of the twister. By the same tremendous rotary motion that causes such terrible damage to everything in its path, the tornado sucked more than three feet of water out of the well, leaving Tony's head still above the surface. The dual action saved the old Italian and when he was rescued hours later he apparently had suffered only a few cuts and bruises. The aftermath of this terrifying experience, however, was a nervous collapse which yielded only to long and expert treatment.

One of the inexplicable features of tornadoes is their uncanny penchant for sparing the most fragile things. Recently the great tornado in Northern Ohio picked up a house at Lorain and literally stood it on its roof. From an inverted chandelier hung four electric globes, not one of which was even cracked.

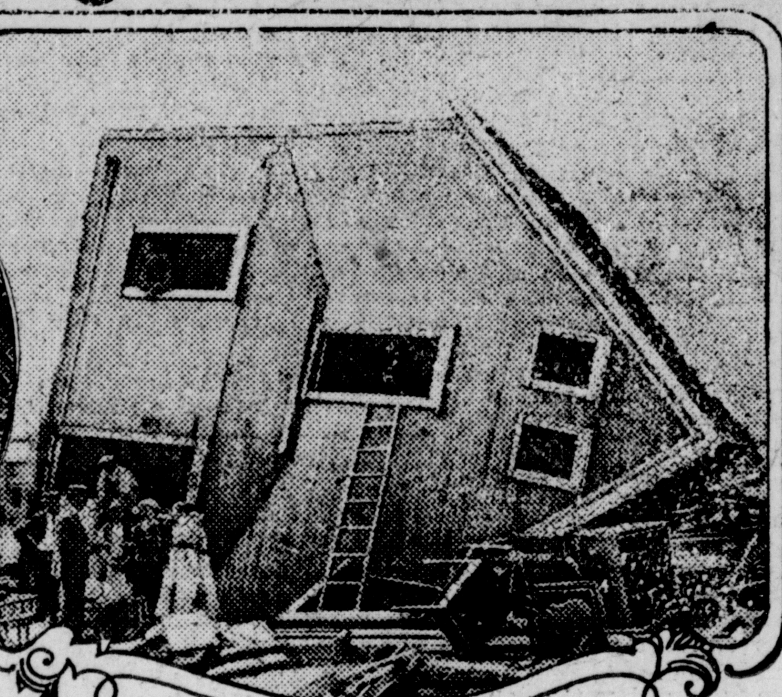

Another and even more remarkable instance of this tendency occurred following the passage of a twister through the town of Biev-ins. ATK. Searching amidst the ruins of a completely demolished home, a Red Cross nurse heard the frantic squawking of a rooster. The most minute search failed to reveal the bird until the nurse's eye fell on a water pitcher that was slanting violently back and forth. Attracted by this strange phenomenon, she found the trouble. It was necessary for her to crack the unbroken pitcher with a stone to release a very bedraggled Chanticleer, who, completely de-feathered by the terrible wind, had then been jammed head first into the pitcher.

So far as is known, the highest wind velocity attained during the height of a cyclone or tornado is 212 miles an hour. This terrific speed must have been approached when, on August 27, 1924, a violent hurricane swept in from the Caribbean Sea and over parts of the Virgin Islands. Of a large herd of cattle, 22 steers were blown across Coral Bay and into a pasture on the opposite side. They were found lying dead in a row some distance inland from the water. In a demolished village on the shores of the bay, a Red Cross field representative tells of a native family with eleven children whose home had been completely destroyed. When it became light enough to count the children two were found to be missing and were later found, still asleep, on their mattress, which had been blown high into a tree.

"Anything can happen during a cyclone or tornado," is the expressed belief of Red Cross Disaster Relief workers. Their years of experience in the field sooner or later make them think nothing impossible. During a series of cyclonic storms that ravaged several Southern States in the Fall of 1923

one family in a small town in South Carolina saw the ominous funnel-shaped cloud coming. Looking arms, they threw themselves face downward on the bed in their small cabin. The tornado struck, with a fearful roar. A few moments later the cowering figures felt a heavy jar, followed by silence. Gathering courage they stood up and looked about them. The roof and sides of the house were gone. Nothing was left but the floor upon which they stood. Investigating further, they found that they were nearly a quarter of a mile away from the site of their home. The tornado had carried away the floor supporting them and the bed, and dropped the whole business in an apple orchard.

In the National Museum in Washington is the trunk of a tree that had been completely severed by rifle bullets fired during one of the great battles of the Civil War. People are frequently amazed by the peculiar way in which tornadoes destroy trees, which are not uprooted, as one would imagine, but twisted off a few feet above the ground. This undoubtedly is due to the rotary motion of the funnel-shaped cloud, which revolving at terrific speed, grinds up everything in its path and then disgorges. As the instances are on record of straws having been driven through tree stumps by tornadoes. The Chamber of Commerce at Hope, Ark., has as a relic the trunk of a large tree nearly severed by a piece of flying tin as large as a telephone book.

Outside of a small town in Texas a fine stand of corn, covering nearly 30 acres, was mowed down, not by the tornado itself, but by sheets of galvanized iron hurled out of a wrecked hardware store nearly half a mile away.

At Texarkana, Texas, a cyclone drove a piece of four inch water pipe through the neck of a horse making a clean cut hole through which a person could look to the other side. Despite the injury the horse lived for three days.

Sometimes, though it must be admitted, not often, a disaster is not an unmitigated tragedy. Occasionally, it replaces in kind what it has taken away. Witness a flood at Burlington, Kansas, which plucked up a fine new garage and carried it far down stream, only to bring another one from up the river and lay it in the back yard almost on the very site of its lost companion. A similar occurrence took place during the Lorain tornado, which picked up and threw into Lake Erie a touring car parked by its owner in an adjoining lot, and by way of compensation presented him with a nearly new sedan. During a Kansas flood a dry goods dealer had practically his entire stock ruined by flood waters 14 feet deep. In an ironic gesture of reparation the swirling waters washed a popcorn stand through the plate glass windows at the front of the store and parked it on a balcony in the rear. Miraculous escapes, with death surging all around, have spared the lives of many people caught in disasters. In the great flood at Pueblo, Colo., two years ago, a desperate mother, with her little two-year-old girl in her arms, climbed the foot spikes of a telegraph pole. As the waters slowly mounted, she climbed higher. For hours she hung on successfully, but the raging waters finally tore her child from her deadened arms. Rescuers in a skiff who saw her plight hours later experienced the greatest difficulty in releasing the nearly demented woman from the pole. Her convulsive grasp had to be pried loose. The climax of the story was reached when Red Cross workers found the little daughter, alive and kicking, where she had been washed up on the top of an overturned freight car.

Three members of a family escaped death during a tornado in Oklahoma despite the fact that the entire upper part of the house fell in on them. Rescuers were astonished to hear their cries emerging from the hopeless ruins of their home. But what was the amazement of a Red Cross volunteer to find that father, mother and son were practically unscathed! When the storm first struck, the three had taken refuge under the baby grand piano, but this capsize, in falling, however, it was checked by the piano stool, the whole making a pyramid which successfully turned aside the falling wreckage. Except for being nearly suffocated by dust from broken plaster, the family was practically unharmed.

The "psychological moment" figured in saving from a terrible death a woman in the same tornado-swept town. When her house began to rock under the force of the twister, she said to her husband: "I must get Johnny to a safe place." Stopping over to pick up the child, who was playing on the floor with a toy, saved her life. At the very moment she stooped a section of brick chimney tumbled off the house next door smashed through the wall of the room and shot out through the window, exactly as a shell from a cannon. Had she not bent over at that second, she would have been headed.

One of the strangest situations ever encountered by Red Cross Disaster Relief workers was met during the great Ohio floods. The town of Future City, Ill., was literally wiped off the map. Every house and outbuilding was torn from its site and sent reeling down the Ohio River, like a great herd of bathing elephants.

Crowds lining the straining levees were then spectators to a chase that probably has no parallel in history. Red Cross Relief workers manned a fleet of motor boats and rushed in all directions after the runaway houses. A boat would dash alongside a house, her crew would deftly attach a hawser to it and then, with racing motor, the "tug" and her strange tow would go slowly back, bucking the flood waters, to Future City, where the dwelling would be anchored to a projecting tree or telegraph pole and the home savers would dash off for more houses.

In order that it may be always prepared to rush quick and adequate relief in any emergency at any time, the Red Cross within the past year has established a Mobile Disaster Unit. This corps of disaster relief experts is kept in readiness at all times to respond to a moment's notice to the call for assistance from stricken communities anywhere in the United States. Recently the Government placed at the disposal of this unit the flying corps of the Army, Navy and Post-office Aviation services, thus insuring the quickest possible dispatch of Red Cross relief experts to the scene of disaster.

THIS YEAR BETTER THAN LAST BABSON SAYS IN OUTLOOK

Babson Park Mass. April 17, 1925. In view of the recent gymnastics of the stock market, Roger W. Babson was today asked his opinion on the situation. Mr. Babson's official statement is as follows:

"Recent stock market movements have of course been a source of worry, if not loss, to those who are carrying stocks on borrowed money and especially those who are carrying stocks on margins. Such men must expect to worry, but there need be no wrong for the man who has good securities paid for in his safe deposit box. The real cause for the stock market break was that too many people were trying to get something for nothing. Gambling in the stock market had become so profitable for a time that 'everyone' was in it and too many had become over-extended and were in too deeply. This is not dangerous when one owns securities outright, but it is always dangerous to bet with borrowed money. Personally I have some doubts as to the ethics of gambling in the stock market, but will not discuss them here.

"Of course brokers' loans were abnormally high having reached an estimated figure of $2,200,000,000 when the market broke a few weeks ago. Today, however, they are down to $1,600,000,000. European conditions are not quite as favorable as they were a few months ago. The death of President Ebert of Germany and the financial position of France are both temporarily disquieting. My knowledge of German conditions, however, makes me believe that German affairs are in the hands of strong and sound men. As to France's finances, there is nothing new in the situation. France's present financial condition has been known for years. Even the St. Paul reversionary should not excite investors. The St. Paul property is better even now than it has been for years and some day there will be a chance to make a tremendous amount of money in connection with this reorganization. Against these adverse factors we have been slowly improving business conditions, a fair crop situation and very easy money."

It was then pointed out to Mr. Babson that altho the above factors apply to the stock market situation, they do not explain the slackness in general trade. To this point Mr. Babson replied as follows:

"It should be remembered that the American people live in the Temperate Zone and consequently are subject to two modes of living, winter and summer. Moreover, the difference in temperature makes a great difference in the purchases of these people, ranging from fur coats to thin cotton dresses. Hence the climate is a tremendous factor in retail trade. Climate moreover is the great factor in determining the crops and hence the purchasing power of the people; as well as a factor in determining the purchasing needs of the people. Now everyone knows what the weather has been this winter and spring. In most parts of the country it has been exceedingly abnormal and has upset all calculations. In other words, the weather since Christmas has been detrimental to business. Of course similar conditions may continue thru the balance of the year, but the law of averages suggests a change. It must not be forgotten that real satisfactory business weather would improve retail trade as much as this abnormal business weather has retarded it.

"Of course the textile situation is very bad while the shoe and leather industries are not doing well. Manufacturing capacity in many lines is greater than our power to absorb. Considering the fact that most plants make their money on the last 25 percent of capacity, it is not surprising that profits are very small when so many plants are operating only 75 percent capacity. On the other hand, business men need not be disturbed because manufacturers, jobbers and merchants are buying 'hand to mouth'. This is not due to lack of funds or lack of confidence, but rather to the great improvement in the transportation systems of the country. Goods were originally bought in large quantities because merchants received their goods by freight only about four times a year. This situation has gradually changed in that now fast freights are coming truly daily. The improvement in railroad transportation, the introduction of auto truck delivery and other factors now make it unnecessary for many factors and merchants to carry large stocks. This is nothing to worry about because it tends to eliminate speculation and hence fundamentally is a good thing. It is possible that 1925 may be a quiet year. It may take several quiet years before the great inflation of war times has been fully readjusted. But there is nothing now to worry about and I am willing to stake my reputation that 1925 will be a better year than 1924 taking in all sections of the country and all lines of industry.

"Of course we should not be surprised to see business fluctuate widely according to stock market and weather barometers. As we went up too far above normal line, the Babson chart reaching 7 percent above normal in February, so it would not be surprising if we dropped considerably below the normal line for a month or two now. All of this, however, should average very satisfactory and I am sure that when the close of this year comes the business line for 1925 will run higher than 1924. These better results, however, will not come of themselves. We must work harder; both employers and wage workers must take a greater interest in their work; while all of us must seek to give greater value for the dollar we receive. When we again look upon business as a service and responsibility instead of a mere game, then real prosperity will return."

"NOT POSSIBLE TO CLASSIFY"

BY MACK SAUER

JIM ADAIR HEARD FROM

I started out the other day to satisfy myself how fast the general public was accumulating wealth. A shoemaker said he was pegging away, a lawyer was lying low; a jockey told me in confidence that he was on the go.

The butcher managed to make ends meet, the ice man had struck a frost; the plumber I met was hitting the pipe-poor fellow, I think he was lost. A pick-pocket took things easy, a baker was loafing all day, while a grocer up and told me that things were going his weigh.

A dentist was living from hand to mouth, and here, just to make a rhyme, I'll have to ring in the jeweler who was working overtime. A burglar said things were picking up, but he had to work at night; and even a poor blind beggar said all things were out of sight.

I asked a spiritualist how things were—"Just medium," he replied; a barber said he was scraping along, the dyer had just dyed. The furrier ran a skin game and he was tanned and red; an undertaker told me he was doing quite well—on the dead. The Hammer Club was hammering, Everhart informed me so, but I turned my head when a dressmaker said, "I am doing sew and sew."

TO FILL SPACE

An egg shampoo
Young Robert tried;
It hit his sideburns
And got fried.

Jim Adair is a friend of mine for life. Here it was Wednesday morning and not a brain throb in the world. Meeting Adair I asked him if he knew anything I could use. He coughed up the remarks on his meeting with the Xenia public. Have you something to offer? Send in your contributions.

MONDAY MORNING BLUES

Sixty per hour.
Young Mike was reeling;
At the crossing a train
Caused that run-down feeling.

So I said to him—"I'll take the thirty thousand and buy the river with it. Then I'll start a laundry. Don't stop here. Read every ad on this page. Tomorrow phone an ad to Phone 111.

REMOVAL OF M'COOK FIELD WILL START JULY 1 IS REPORT

Removal of the McCook Field air port to the new site east of Dayton, partly in Greene and partly in Montgomery County territory, will begin about July 1, when contracts for the construction work on the new field will be let, according to Major C. E. Walton, quartermaster representative, who has been ordered to this district to supervise the work.

A visit was paid McCook Field Tuesday by Major Walton and a group of Washington, D. C. prominent officials to make a preliminary inspection of plans.

It is believed that Dayton contractors will be asked to take the contract. Bids will be asked for as soon as an office is established at Dayton, and the award will be made by the quartermaster general at Washington, according to Major Walton.

Major Walton intimated that the $500,000 appropriation of congress was already available and actual work of construction at the new site will get under way when final detail plans are in shape.

The first step will be to grade the flying field and sites for erection of buildings, followed by installation of heat, power, gas, water and electricity by the laying of underground pipes, it is said. The initial congressional appropriation covers only ground work on the project.

CEDARVILLE WILL PLAY WITTENBERG

Cedarville College was scheduled to play hosts to Wittenberg College, of Springfield, in a return game on the former's diamond Wednesday afternoon. The game was scheduled to get under way at 2 o'clock.

Wittenberg possesses a classy nine again this season, and the Greene County college team has been getting in several good practice sessions this week in preparation for what is considered one of the stiffest games of the season.

With several veterans back on the team, Cedarville's chances of coping the Wittenberg clash are considered excellent.

Here's Yesterday's Puzzle Solution

BRINGING UP FATHER

Michael's Marriage

By MICHAEL

CHAPTER XXII.

The clock was well on its way toward 4 o'clock when Michael returned to his office. He grimed foolishly in the direction of Inglesby, and explained: "Huh. I got kept longer than I expected. Anything come up?"

"Nothing, except that the president was looking for you." The assistant's tone was slightly sarcastic.

"Does he want to see me now?"

"He said he would like to see you if you come back today."

Inglesby's sarcasm reached Michael. The latter regarded him coldly for a moment, then turned toward Arthur Manning's office. "Oh, well," he thought.

"Ing is getting cocky because he's going to get my job and has an idea he'll keep it—we'll see about that."

He was forced to await Arthur Manning's pleasure in the ante-room, with Louise Wentzel endeavoring to be sociable. He nodded indifferently at whatever she said, and answered her queries with unenthusiastic yeses or noes. His mind was elsewhere.

He was musing over the fact he had told Lilah Pharely he didn't know whether he was going to Chicago; when there was a knock that he was going. He had a feeling that an irresistible force was drawing him there.

"Perhaps, after all, it is best," he told himself. "A few weeks' separation will be a test of my love for her."

He was thinking now of his mother's deathbed injunction: "After you've found the girl you want to marry, ask her and wait a while. Six months isn't too long."

He wondered if his mother would have liked Lilah. Arthur Manning greeted him brusquely.

"I suppose you're all ready to go," he said. "I want to have a long talk with you Saturday morning about our situation in Chicago. I'm greatly interested in this venture of yours. I know you father would want you to undertake something of this sort. He was a great salesman himself. Yes, sir, he made this company."

Michael waited skeptically for Manning to get to his point. It was revealed a moment later.

"I just happened to think a little while ago that you might not be able to attend the stockholders' meeting. I'll be glad to act as your proxy, if you like."

Michael responded coolly: "Thanks, but I'm planning on coming over for the meeting. I'll have to be in town about that time any way."

"Well, in case you shouldn't happen to turn up, it would be a good idea if I had your proxy available."

Michael smiled slightly. "Yes, I'll attend to it before I go away."

He was reminded that he must mail his proxy to Alonzo Capper with final instructions. Whew! Wouldn't Arthur Manning be surprised when Lonnie turned up in the stockholders' meeting!

He was elated by Manning's disappointment, apparent now.

Only Lilah Pharely was at the station to see him off. He had maneuvered Lonnie Capper out of the idea of being present. Of course Alonzo suspected the reason why his presence would be unwelcome.

Michael and Lilah stood silently in the concourse of the station, arm in arm, watching the stream that filtered through the revolving doors of the entrance. Their thoughts were far away; neither, strangely, was thinking of the other. Michael's mind was full of the prospect of enjoying Chicago, and Lilah, her imagination fired by an advertisement on a board in a corner, was wishing that she was in California.

When Michael's train was called, the pair glanced expectantly at each other then walked slowly toward the gates. Out there, Michael heard, "Goodbye!" and the little squeeze he gave her was more eloquent than words.

They stood facing each other, chattering nervously of unimportant things, giggling and laughing at everything, until the last of the line of passengers was passing through the gates. Each was wishing that the scene was over.

"I'll be seeing you again soon," Michael said.

"I hope so, Michael; and you must write every day."

"I will, Lilah. . . Goodbye!" He hurriedly bent over and kissed her; then hurried, shame-faced, through the gates, but did not turn until he was boarding the train. Then he waved at her and quickly disappeared.

POLICE GRAFTERS ARE GIVEN SENTENCE

LIUTENANT FIRST TO HEAR SENTENCE TO ATLANTA PRISON

Cincinnati Officers Learn
Prison Terms One By
One From Court

Cincinnati, April 22—Lieutenant Aubrey Houston, commanding a relief at the fourth district police station, and brother of Barney Houston, chief of the Cincinnati fire department, was sentenced to serve 18 months in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, today on the charge of accepting money to protect bootleggers.

Houston is the highest ranking officer of the forty-eight members of the police force who are now being sentenced, one by one, by U. S. District Judge Smith Hickenlooper.

Government investigators declared Lieutenant Houston had accepted $9,000 in graft money. Houston, who pleaded guilty, said this figure had been exaggerated.

Judge Hickenlooper told him the amount made no difference. He scored Houston for setting a bad example to his men.

Louis Sunderman, a member of the flying squad of detectives, who also pleaded guilty, was given the same sentence. It was charged that Sunderman's graft amounted to $17,000.

Forty-eight pair of heavy shoes squeaked painfully as the defendants filed into the courtroom to receive their punishment. In the throng in the corridor were many known bootleggers, handbook men and others who have "done time." Yet the grins of joy on the faces of the men and women who had lived in fear of the "dicks" and "bills" did not appear until after the forty-eight grafters had passed by. A vague premonition that "Lady Luck" might still come to the rescue of the cops and restore to them their power, filled the consciousness of the lawbreakers. The squeaking of the shoes ceased as the officers sat down heavily. Beads of perspiration appeared on many of their foreheads as they waited for Judge Hickenlooper to enter. Some looked around and smiled uneasily at wives, other relatives and friends, who were beginning to occupy seats in the rear of the courtroom.

Following the advice of lawyers, a number of the defendants, wives, brought babies along, in the forlorn hope that the cooing or crying of the tots would soften the court.

"Say, fellows," whispered a pickpocket. "Now them guys up there in front, know how it feels to be up against what they handed us!"

One of the attorneys for the policemen went over to the newspaper table.

"It doesn't seem quite right to me, boys," he confided, "to send up little fellows and let the big criminals go. There are plenty of grafters walking around the streets today who'll never be caught."

Rome, April 22—The yearly celebration of the founding of Rome—2,678 years ago, continued today, gaining added significance with new excavations in the Forum of Augustus.

Part of the temple of Mars Ultor was excavated at a depth of twenty feet. Clearing away old and ugly houses brought to light the steps of the temple and the substructure of the northern Stylobate with its low columns and corridor flanked with eight niches, four on a side. The house of the Rhodes Knights also has been revealed. This former home of the oldest order of knightly chivalry, stood north of the temple of Mars. It was built in the early thirteenth and late fifteenth centuries.

Its magnificent loggia will be restored, together with the beautiful interior.

COOKING SCHOOL TEACHER RINGS BELL FOR SILENCE—WOMEN OBEY

Mrs. Mary Brown-Lewers, lecturer and demonstrator at The Gazette and Republican Cooking School, at McKinley Auditorium, has a little bell on the table before her which she gently taps when her feminine audience starts to gossip on some phase of the lecture or demonstration. The women are obedient "pupils" for the tinkling of the bell is followed by immediate silence. To satisfy the feminine weakness for talking, however, Mrs. Brown-Lewers occasionally calls a recess and lets her "pupils" talk to their hearts' content.

There's nothing "highbrow" or fancy about the recipes given by Mrs. Brown-Lewers, or in the method she demonstrates in preparing dishes. She is a simple housewife, accustomed to the home ways in which the Queen of the Kitchen works and the individual methods of doing various tasks. For instance she told Tuesday afternoon's audience that they could mix cake dough with a

Law Full Of Holes—Will

Columbus, April 22—Litigation, seeking to have the gasoline tax law providing for a tax of two cents per gallon, on all gasoline sold except for industrial or farm machinery purposes nullified, loomed here today as attorneys for the Ohio State Automobile Association prepared to test the constitutionality of the law in the courts.

C. C. Jones, executive secretary of the association, C. D. Saviers and J. F. Atwood, the association's attorneys, were in Cleveland today in conference with Fred Caley, president and Walter D. Meals, Cleveland attorney.

In a statement issued here, Jones declared:

"The law is so carelessly drawn and has so many holes in it, we believe the courts can do nothing but declare it unconstitutional."

Jones also said that an application for suspension to allow a referendum vote on the law would be a feature of the suit when it reaches the state supreme court.

VANDERBILT NIECE MARRIED IN PARIS

Paris, April 22—Mrs. Alice Allen, former "Kiki" Gwynne, the niece of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt and Jerome Preston, New York, were married shortly before noon today in the town hall of the arrondissement of Marie the sixteenth.

The bride secured her Paris divorce a few weeks ago.

A wedding luncheon at the Ritz followed the civil ceremony. Members of the family included Mrs. Helen Gwynne, the bride's mother, and Erskine Gwynne, her brother.

wooden spoon, a metal spoon or their hands if they wished, really preferring the latter method since she knew the housewives are acquainted with the swiftness of this method. The result, Mrs. Brown-Lewers knows is more important than the method and she brings this out in many ways to the pleasure of the women.

"Every child should be taught the value of money, from the time he is given a penny for a lollipop, to when he is earning his own money," was one of the points made by Mrs. Brown-Lewers Tuesday. "Every member of the family should be given his place in the family circle and have a definite way of filling it," she declared.

Did you know that the average family income for a community is between $100 and $150 a month? That is the estimate of Mrs. Brown-Lewers. She has worked out the di-

TWO DAYS TO SENTENCE

Cincinnati, O., April 22—It is estimated that it will require two days to sentence all fifty-nine Cincinnati policemen, detectives and county liquor court agents who have pleaded guilty to accepting money to protect bootleggers. U. S. District Judge Smith Hickenlooper Wednesday began the task. Thirty-eight of the culprits are members of the Cincinnati police force and twenty-one are village "dry" agents.

According to U. S. District Attorney Haveth E. Mau, it will take about fifteen minutes to sentence each prisoner.

LOS ANGELES MOORS SAFELY AT BERMUDA AFTER NIGHT FLIGHT

Navy Dirigible Makes Trip In
Little More Than Eleven
Hours

Washington, April 22—The navy dirigible Los Angeles arrived over Bermuda at 2:10 a.m. after a successful flight from Lakehurst, N. J., according to a radio message received this morning by the navy department.

The dirigible encountered stiff headwinds over the Atlantic which held down its flying time. The ship made the flight in eleven hours and thirty-two minutes.

The dirigible hovered over the island until daylight before any attempt was made to fasten her to the mooring mast aboard the Dakota.

The Los Angeles left Lakehurst at 2:38 yesterday. She carried a crew of twenty-eight and about thirty others, including aviators and army and navy observers. Captain George W. Steele and Commander Jacob Klein were in charge.

"Don't take your neighbors in your confidence when you arrange a budget," Mrs. Brown-Lewers warned her audience Tuesday. "Have occasional family conferences. In doubt about the budget, go to your bank for help, and suggestions. The budget is a matter of personal labor."

Mrs. Brown-Lewers was introduced Tuesday by Mrs. Pearl Wolf, instructor in home economics at Central High School. Girls of Mrs. Wolf's class are assisting in the school, by receiving the women and presenting them with programs at the door. Each girl looks like a juvenile housewife, with white cap and apron.

the subject has been attracting so much attention.

Wednesday afternoon she demonstrated simple salads to be used with the more elaborate dinner. In this lecture she dealt with the ornamental salad to be used with the very simple dinner to give it that appetizing touch which might otherwise be lacking.

WHEELER WILL TAKE STAND

SATISFYING, APPETIZING SALADS CONCOCTED OF FLOWERS AND OTHER THINGS AT COOKING SCHOOL HERE

"Hungry All the Time" Subject of Mrs. Brown-Lewers
At Gazette and Republican School—Crowds
Attend Session Wednesday.

Women in attendance at Mrs. Mary Brown-Lewers' lecture at the Gazette-Republican Cooking School, at McKinley Auditorium, Wednesday afternoon, learned a great deal about how to construct that most fascinating and mysterious part of the meal, which though it bears the simple name of "salad" may contain anything from alligator pears to nuts.

Decorative salads at one time were thought to be the diet of the rich only but Mrs. Brown-Lewers shows women how economically they may be made and at the same time how essential they are to enhance the attractiveness of the simple dinner. More than that, they are a valuable part of the diet from the standpoint of health.

Mrs. Brown-Lewers called the attention of her audience to the fact that America leads the world in the making of salads. This has been the development of recent years since

Slips containing the recipe for each article of the menu were given each woman attending.

The lecture was preceded by a concert by the O. S. and S. O. Home Band, under the direction of Professor Seal.

Miss Eleanor McDonnell will sing a group of songs before Thursday afternoon's program.

The following women were given baskets of groceries at the Cooking School, Tuesday afternoon, after the lecture and demonstration: Mrs. Lewis F. Drake, 201 Dayton Avenue; Mrs. Frank Owens, Cincinnati Avenue; Miss Leila E. Quinn, North Detroit Street; Mrs. Willa Glass, Wilberforce University; Mrs. Frank Hogue, Chestnut Street; Mrs. J. H. Smith, West Second Street; Mrs. T. W. Conklin, Xenia; Mrs. James Mullen, Xenia, Route 9; Mrs. J. H. McVay, 220 West Third Street.

The school is now half over and there are still many vital problems of the home maker to be discussed. Come early, bring pencil and notepad and feel free to ask questions. Questions are gladly answered by Mrs. Brown-Lewers at the close of each day's lecture. They may either be asked orally or written on slips of paper and passed to the stage.

Another crowded auditorium greeted the lecturer Wednesday.

CATHEDRAL BOMBING WAS MOVE TO THROW OVER GOVERNMENT

Planned to Set Up Soviet
Regime—Most of Leaders
Arrested

Sofia, April 22—A statement from the Bulgarian government issued today, confirmed reports that the cathedral bombing was to be the opening move in a detailed plan for the overthrow of the government. The date for the proclamation of a provisional soviet regime had been set in advance, and is known to the authorities, according to the statement.

The government named the names of the proposed provisional regime and has arrested most of them, it was said. The government alleged that they had been cooperating with communist organizations in Serbia and Czechoslovakia where Kolaroff, Dimitroff, Dotorloff and Obef, were said to be the leaders.

The government continued its drastic measures to suppress all disturbances. No reign of terror exists nor summary executions held but the government is handling the situation with firmness.

BRUTAL MURDER COMES TO LIGHT

Belgrade, April 22—The Jugo Slav government today issued a statement emphatically denying any intention of invading Bulgaria. Jugo Slavs will continue its peaceful policy, according to the statement.

The statement was in answer to rumors current in Vienna that the Bulgarian revolts were incited to provoke civil war and thus provide Jugo Slavia with an excuse to invade and occupy the country.

The Vienna rumors said that a Jugo Slav army was ready to march into Bulgaria if the revolts developed into a definite revolutionary movement. It was reported from Bucharest that King Ferdinand and Queen Marie of Roumania had made all arrangements to receive King Boris and the Bulgarian royal family if they should flee from Sofia.

NORMAN THORN GOES TO GALLOWS TO PAY FOR MURDER OF GIRL

Man Who Tried To Solve Love
Tangles By Killing, Smiles
On Scaffold

Wandsworth Prison, London, April 22—Norman Thorn, wealthy young farmer, paid with his life today for his attempt to solve his love tangle by the murder of his sweetheart. He was convicted of slaying Elsie Cameron, pretty London typist, that he might be free to wed Grace Caldwell, his country sweetheart. Thorn was hanged at 8 a. m. in the prison courtyard.

Thorn faltered when he left the death cell, but immediately gained his composure. He was smiling when the black cap was adjusted and stepped out firmly as he was led onto the trap.

Fifteen minutes later, with the execution officially completed, the chaplain and prison officials left the courtyard. Outside the prison gates a meagre crowd waited for news that Thorn had been hanged.

The public had expected he would be executed at 9 a. m. the hour originally set. A half dozen persons were waiting and at the hour of his death less than a hundred were there.

Shortly before nine, more of the death watchers came. Mothers pushing baby carriages joined the crowd, only to leave in disappointment when they learned the time of the hanging had been advanced.

Thorn was found guilty of killing the typist, aged 21, in his little home on his poultry farm at Crowborough, near the estate of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, famous writer of detective stories. It was brought out at the trial that Thorn cut up the body, burned some portions of it and buried the remainder. It was also brought out that Thorn had fallen in love with a rustic beauty of the district. Grace Caldwell wanted to marry him but had promised to take Elsie Cameron as his wife.

The appeal will be based on technicalities and will allege that the charges under which Harrison was convicted are unconstitutional. Harrison's attorneys said.

On War On Crime.

Dr. C. R. McConnell, Washington Street, Jamestown, arrested as an alleged move in the county drive against crime, Wednesday, was held for arraignment in Probate Court April 29 on a charge of unlawfully prescribing intoxicating liquors by Deputy Probate Judge Alagna Hawes Wednesday morning. He gave appearance bond of $500 and was released.

A warrant for McConnell's arrest was sworn out by F. E. Gary, county detective, who it is believed is transferring his efforts from gambling to alleged illicit liquor trafficking.

Dr. McConnell, prominent Jamestown physician, is said to be charged with giving Gary, the detective, a prescription for more than one-half pint of whiskey at one time. Dr. McConnell has been practicing medicine in Jamestown two or three years.

DEFENSE TRIES NEW ONSLAUGHT TO BREAK GOVERNMENT'S CASE

Counsel Attacks Story of
Star Federal Witness
In Trial

Great Falls, Mont., April 22—Another onslaught to break down the government's evidence was directed by the defense in federal court here today in the trial of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, for alleged misuse of office. Wheeler himself planned to take the stand to deny the charges.

The defense concentrated chiefly in attacking the testimony of the government's surprise witness, George B. Hayes, New York lawyer. Hayes sprang the big sensation of the trial in testifying to an offer alleged to have been made him by Wheeler in a New York hotel lobby. By this proposal, Hayes said, he was to receive half of Wheeler's fees for representing Wheeler before the interior department in prosecuting claims of Gordon Campbell, Montana oil operator.

With Wheeler's testimony, concluded the court was to recess until Saturday, awaiting the arrival of four new defense witnesses from the east.

They were called in an eleven-hour attempt by the defense to combat Hayes' testimony which Wheeler's attorneys regard as the most damaging offered in the prosecution's case.

Had it not been for Hayes, the defense planned to move for an instructed verdict of acquittal when the government rested.

Edwin S. Booth, formerly solicitor of the interior, already has testified that he never suggested to Hayes that he represented Wheeler. Hayes declared that Booth first made the proposal, and by telephone arranged the New York meeting with Wheeler. Booth denied even calling Hayes, but admitted talking to Hayes in Washington about financing Campbell, from whom Wheeler is accused specifically of receiving $4,000 to handle oil permits before the interior department.

Under order of the court, the prosecution was forced to divulge to the defense letters written by Hayes to Booth. In substance, Hayes in these letters told only of progress he was making in securing backing for Campbell.

Because of the two day recess, it is not expected the trial can be concluded before the middle of the next week.

Columbus, O., April 22—Attorneys for Dwight Harrison, Columbus, former official of the defunct R. L. Dollings Company, and now under sentence to serve three years in the Ohio penitentiary for defrauding investors, are preparing an appeal to the United States Supreme Court from the decision of the Ohio supreme court which ruled late Tuesday that Harrison must serve his prison term, imposed by Franklin County courts.

The appeal will be based on technicalities and will allege that the charges under which Harrison was convicted are unconstitutional. Harrison's attorneys said.

CUBAN WONDER WILL MEET SAILOR JACK STANLEY AT EAGLES

Local wrestling fans will be treated to several good mat bouts at another wrestling show to be held at the Eagles Hall Saturday night, April 25, under the auspices of the Eagles Lodge.

Lee Umbles, the "Cuban Wonder," said to be the 145 pound wrestling champion of Cuba, will again display his wares to local fans in the main bout, with Sailor Jack Stanley, of Newark, O., claimant to the welterweight championship of the Pacific Coast fleet.

The Cuban needs no introduction locally, because of his performance here at a recent Eagle's show, and Stanley will probably be put to the supreme test in order to defeat the pride of Cuba. The match is the headliner of the show and will be the best two falls out of three.

Gone Wead, a local lightweight wrestling artist, will wrestle one fall with Strangler Dixon, of Columbus in the semi-final. Speedy Crawford, local welterweight and Young Tex, of Columbus will stage the preliminary of one fall.

The show is scheduled to begin at 8:30 o'clock. Admission is 75 cents.

TAGGING ALL BASES

Robertson and Tobin obliged with homers with men on bases and the Browns got a 9 to 8 decision over the White Sox. Gaston fanned five men in the first two innings but couldn't stand prosperity. Sister hit safely in his seventh straight game.

First thing you know, some bright gent is going to find a new name for Connie Mack's $100,000 purchase. "Lemon" Groves will do until a better one turns up. Starting his third game for the Athletics, Groves again blew the works by his wildness and the Senators won, 7 to 2.

Sam Jones stepped out of character with three hits and a stolen base while the Yankees won in a romp from the Red Sox, 5 to 1. Pichinch's homer cheating Samuel out of a shutout.

The Indians succumbed to the inevitable and their first defeat when Fothergill's single in the eighth staked the Tigers to the winning run, 4 to 3. Fewster's wild throw gave the Tigers three runs in the second.

SATURDAY DIAMOND LEAGUE IS REVIVED AT TUESDAY MEET

The old Saturday Afternoon Baseball League was voted into existence again Tuesday night at a meeting of representatives of four local companies.

A schedule of eighteen games is being arranged with the first games to be played May 2, at the Washington Park diamond.

The league is composed of four teams representing the Xenia Shoe factory, the R. A. Kelly Company, the Hooven and Allison Company and the Pennsylvania Railroad.

In organizing their teams the different members of the league will not be confined to selecting material from their own companies alone, it was decided, but may sign up any player in the county. In this manner each team in the league will be able to present a good lineup in regular games, it is believed.

Complete plans for the opening of the season will be perfected at another meeting to be held at the American Legion rooms Friday night at 7:30 o'clock. Representatives of each team are asked to be present.

PLAINTIFF HEARS ALL WITNESSES IN LARGE DAMAGE CASE

The plaintiff finished its list of witnesses at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning in the case of Mrs. Logan C. W. Nickell, administratrix of the estate of Volney Nickell deceased against Lincoln Funderburk, former sheriff of Greene County which began in Common Pleas Court Tuesday.

The plaintiff is suing for $25,000 damages based on the fatal shooting of Volney Nickell by a sheriff's posse which fired upon boys playing pranks along the Wilmington Pike in September 1922. In a previous trial the plaintiff was awarded $5,000 damages, but the Court of Appeals found error in the charge and the case set aside the verdict and remanded the case for new trial.

The jury was taken to the scene of the shooting Tuesday. Witnesses called by the plaintiff were Dr. R. L. Haines, coroner; W. L. Davis, county surveyor; Clarence Keltner, Warren Middleton, Dorsey Nickell who were with Volney Nickell at the time of the shooting; Frank Weaver, William Haworth, Roma Humphrey and the sheriff of Clinton County.

Witnesses subpoenaed for the defense were: William Burns, Dayton Gus A. Segritz, Dayton; A. J. McClure, Springfield; Pearl McClure, Springfield; Dr. P. D. Espey, Dr. W. A. Galloway, J. E. ORVILLE JEFFRIES IS GIVEN SENTENCE AFTER GUILTY PLEA

Orville Jeffries, Cedarville, who was absolved of connection with the burglary and robbery of the Ross Store Company, of Jamestown by the confession of Urshel White, Springfield, was arraigned before J. E. Jones, Justice of the Peace Tuesday afternoon on a charge of receiving stolen goods and fined $25 and costs and sentenced to thirty days in the County Jail. He pleaded guilty.

A charge against him of burglary and larceny will probably be dismissed, it is said. William Jeffries, his cousin, also recently charged with burglary and larceny will be arraigned before Magistrate Jones later in the week on a charge of receiving stolen goods.

The Jeffries cousins were freed of implication in a series of Greene County burglaries by the confession of Urshel White, 29, arrested Sunday in Gallipolis, O., which implicated himself and three other men, but stated that William and Orville Jeffries had only received the stolen goods and did not participate in the robberies.

Authorities are looking for the other member of the alleged gang of hold-up men.

TRAFFIC SURVEY OF OHIO VALLEY MADE IN RIVER INTERESTS

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 22.—A traffic survey of the Ohio Valley has been begun by the Inland Waterways Corporation, the government corporation which under the Secretary of War operates the Federal barge line on the Mississippi and Warrior Rivers, to determine the advisability of extending their common carrier water service up the Ohio and upper Mississippi Rivers.

The work is being done under a special committee from the board of advisors of the corporation, of which Wilmer M. Jacoby of Pittsburgh and Halleck W. Seaman of Chicago are the members. To Mr. Jacoby has been assigned the task of making a study of the Ohio river situation and he is now engaged in corresponding with chambers of commerce, boards of trade, manufacturer's associations, agricultural groups and river development bodies in the Ohio Valley to enlist their co-operation in the work of estimating the probable tonnage that could be moved by the barge line which offers shippers a freight rate on all commodities that is 20 per cent less than corresponding rail rates.

The work of studying the situation in the Upper Mississippi Valley is being done by Mr. Seaman. The entire survey is under the immediate direction of Brig. Gen. T. Q. Ashburn, executive head of the service, and upon its result depends the decision of the war department as to extending the line into either or both streams.

In letters being sent out by Mr. Jacoby this week, to commercial, manufacturing and agricultural organizations he states that it is the purpose of the survey to find out the actual traffic and terminal situation through out the Ohio valley so that accurate data will be in the hands of the special committee when the canalization of the Ohio river is completed upon which to base a decision regarding the extension of the government barge line's common carrier service into that stream.

"This service," says Mr. Jacoby's letter to trade bodies, "affords a dependable trunk-line waterway facility for moving all manner of freight upon rates established by the Interstate Commerce Commission at 80 per cent of the rail rates, thus offering a saving of 20 per cent to shippers making use of it. In co-operation not in competition with the rail lines, and as a supplement to their services, it is efficiently serving an extended territory in the Mississippi Valley in the economical distribution of all manner of commodities."

Mr. Jacoby stated today that the extension of the service into the Ohio river cannot be considered before completion of the lock and dam system, which is promised for the year 1930 by the United States engineers, and that whether or not a favorable recommendation can be made to the Secretary of War depends entirely upon the enthusiasm and interest displayed by potential shippers and receivers of freight throughout the region of the Ohio Valley and contiguous territory. Mississippi Valley business men are enthusiastic boosters for the service he stated, because they can count in hundreds of thousands of dollars the freight savings the line has procured for them.

COUNTY DEMURRER TO MANDAMUS CASE OVERRULED TUESDAY

A demurrer to the mandamus action of the State of Ohio, ex rel Attorney General G. C. Crabbe, against R. O. Wead, Greene County Auditor, was overruled by the Supreme Court in Columbus Tuesday, according to Columbus advices.

Mandamus action was brought by the state against the county auditor's office to compel payment of alleged unpaid bills for commitment of dependent children to the state board of charities during the administration of Judge J. C. Marshall in Juvenile Court.

A demurrer to the petition was filed in the Supreme Court by Attorney C. L. Darlington, representing Greene County, several months ago, but a decision on the action had been repeatedly delayed, it was believed, members of the supreme court disagreeing on the demurrer, when a vote was taken.

County Auditor Wead refused to pay the bill for commitment of children to the state board, a number of months ago contending the bill was too high. The county contends in resisting the Supreme Court action, that suit for collection should have been brought in the local Common Pleas Court.

XENIAN TO MANAGE CHILLICOTHE CLUB

H. F. Rowe, field secretary of the Greene County Auto Club for the past six months, entered upon his new duties as business manager of the Ross County Auto Club, at Chillicothe last Monday.

The Ross County Auto Club is said to be one of the most prosperous of the auto clubs in the state although with only a small membership and appointed Mr. Rowe to act in the capacity of business manager through lack of a secretary.

Mr. Rowe gained his experience while associated with the local club.

World Famous Eyrie Destroyed

The world famous eagle's nest at Vermilion, Ohio, on whose site eagles have lived for over a century, has been partially blown down in a severe storm. Students of bird life have been greatly interested in this eagle's nest, for it was the fifth that had been built in that locality within a hundred years. Ornithologists wondered whether this misfortune, coupled with the fact that a short time previously a farmer had shot and killed a large male eagle near there, would cause the birds to quit the locality. A short time after the male eagle was killed its mate departed, only to return soon with a new mate. Hardly had their old nest been destroyed when they began working feverishly on a new one, which is five feet across, four feet high and seventy feet from the ground.

GUARDIAN NAMED FOR POISONER OF FOURTEEN PEOPLE

Medina, O., April 22.—Arthur D. Ayland, manager of the Medina Telephone Company, has been appointed guardian of Mrs. Martha Wise, confessed poisoner of fourteen persons, three of whom died, including her mother, niece and nephew. The guardian was asked by Mrs. Wise's brother-in-law, Merton M. Adams, after the woman gave an order to her attorney Joseph Pritchard of Cleveland for $1800 she had on deposit in a Medina bank.

During the hearing Tuesday, Pritchard called his client "the craziest person on the American continent." This was the first mention of the slayers insanity in court. None of the witnesses would admit she was insane and Dr. Albert Wood of Brunswick, Wis. family physician, declared her perfectly sane.

The trial for murder will open May 4 and it is believed the defense will be insanity.

FINED ON CHARGE
Robert Haer, Osborn, was fined $25 and costs by Mayor H. E. Frahn, of Osborn Monday afternoon on a charge of striking an arresting officer. He was arrested Sunday by Assistants Marshal Albert Jolley. Jolley had demanded that the proper license plates be placed on an automobile which was in charge of Haer's young son. One of the plates had been temporarily removed. It is said.

HANDS-OFF NATURES BEAUTY

CREAM-WHITE and pink tinged blooms crown the branchlets of the Dogwood bush while the flaming color of the Redbud along the hillside presents a picture of loveliness that brings forth the admiration of all lovers of the out of doors. Thousands are now driving through the open country where tree, shrub and flower have sprung into new life. If the Dogwood and the Redbud could tremble with fear they would do so for the annual assault is now on. It is the battle of the springtime between the wildbush, struggling for growing beauty, and the citizen—the motorists and the "hikers"—stripping branches of this beauty only to have the flowers quickly fade and to throw the bedraggled remains by the roadside.

In some states campaigns have been conducted for the purpose of educating the public in the idea of conserving the blooming trees, shrubs and wildflowers as in the years to come future generations will thus be enabled to enjoy these beauties of nature as we today enjoy them. It is to be hoped that such efforts will become nation-wide. All that is needed is to teach the lesson that to enjoy the Dogwood and the Redbud and the many other things that make the open country a veritable park, they must be left for all to enjoy. In this the Boy Scouts and the Girl Scouts, with their training in the love of the out-of-doors and its natural wild life, could do much towards the prevention of this deplorable destruction by not only refraining from ruthlessly tearing branches from the trees and shrubs but also asking that their parents and friends follow their example.

Both Dogwood and Redbud are among those blossoms that fade the quickest and are almost valueless by the time they are transported to one's home; whose natural beauty prospers only in their natural state. Let's keep "hands off" and get others to do the same.

COUNTS AND NO-ACCOUNTS

ACCORDING to the Paris correspondent of a New York daily, a statement attributed to President Coolidge to the effect that former Premier Herriot's troubles came from inherited financial difficulties, and expressing great sympathy for the fallen Premier, "has caused an exceedingly unpleasant impression in many quarters of the French capital." Too bad! Too bad!

President Coolidge made no official statement of this kind. If he said such a thing in private conversation, to be snapped up by a reporter and shot over the wire, he was only expressing a personal opinion, and every American is entitled to that privilege.

European statesmen generally have not hesitated to express their opinions freely and publicly concerning American policies and government—indeed going to the extent of interfering in our domestic questions. Ever since the Armistic this country has been overrun with European statesmen and near-states, counts and no-accounts, who have entertained us with recipes for government and belabored us for failure to conform to their views. We have taken them good-naturedly, extended our hospitality, and calmly pursued our America way. Certainly President Coolidge was competent to make the statement attributed to him, having himself "inherited financial difficulty" of several unnecessary billions of debts from the Democratic administration.

THE WARNING

Time was I could have run the mile,
Or, hatless, braved the summer sun.
I had the boy's wide-stretching smile,
His health and appetite for fun;
I knew not what it meant to be
Too tired to take my turn at bat.
But now my doctor says to me:
"You're much too old for things like that!"
I've romped through many a summer day

And never seemed to pause for breath,
But now my love of honest play
Is clouded by the thought of death,
I still could climb an apple tree,
Hang by my legs or skinned the cat.
But "don't," my doctor says to me,
"You're much too old for things like that!"

Time was I ate with keen delight,
Green fruit, or ripe, or cake or pie,
Without one thought that with the night
Perhaps in agony I'd die;
But round about me now I see
Terrors that wait to stretch me flat.
A solemn doctor warning me:
"You're much too old for things like that!"

Time was I trod youth's merry stage
And battled strength for sport
And fun,
But now I've reached that grim old age
When all exertion I must shun;
Upon the slide lines now I stay,
Creaky of joint and growing fat.
Condemned to hear the doctor say:
"You're much too old for sports like that!"

cause the heat, in processing, penetrates more quickly to the center of these small jars than to the larger, quart-size jars. I shall also advocate using the intermittent, or Three-Period Method for these four difficult vegetables, rather than the One-Period Cold Pack Method, for this reason: Processing the jar for one hour should suffice to destroy all bacteria in the vegetable form; then, by cooling the jar rapidly to room-temperature and allowing it to stand overnight, opportunity is given for surviving spores to "sprout" into the vegetable form; after which the second hour-long period of processing will kill all of the young, tender cells which have just germinated from the spores; the third hour of processing catches newly germinated cells from any spores which may have failed to germinate within the first intermission.

Before beginning our canning with the old methods, it is well to see what the latest United States Government Bulletin on this subject has to say. Miscellaneous Circular Number 24 (which you can obtain by writing to The Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. and enclosing five cents,) advises that all vegetables except tomatoes be canned only in a pressure cooker; but that the water bath canner may be used for fruits and tomatoes (which are more acid, if you desire).

Now, the question is, will housewives who, in past years, have had good luck with all vegetables, using their wash-boiler as a home-made water bath outfit, go out and buy pressure canners, this summer? I do not think so. Of course the above-quoted Government Bulletin is dependable. But the average housewife cannot afford to buy new equipment on short notice, especially if she has had good results with equipment on hand.

So during the coming months of the canning season, I shall give directions for using both the pressure canner and the hot-water bath wash-boiler canner for all vegetables. This will satisfy the housewife who wishes to be doubly safe by buying a pressure canner; and it will also satisfy the little bride who would be able to do no canning if she could not economize by using her clothes-boiler as a canner—and "take a chance" that she would have as good luck as many other housewives have had in the past by canning all their vegetables with this homely equipment.
In using the wash-boiler outfit for the four most difficult vegetables to can (asparagus, peas, corn and beans—both lima and string) I should advise the use of only pint-size jars be-

BIOGRAPHY

There is no story so full of all that life is as the life of a human being. History is but collected stories of men and women who did their separate jobs.
When we read of bravery and the exhibition of fine strength by others we are in turn inspired. Thought and action, each in turn, melt into the circle of time which softens every harsh edge of life.

If we couldn't learn that the virtues of life laid so well, then we would all too often fall into the cheap and worthless offerings of those who prey upon our virtue.

But biography explains, illumines and marks out paths that any one of us may profit from.

And where that man or woman has been stirring figure in a troubled period, how interesting and helpful and thrilling to read of his or her every move.

Whether writer, statesman, reformer, artist or merchant, there is that same fascination for facts and incidents that crowd about that busy life. And then, there is the background for every thought or action on the part of that one who forms the kernel of the story.

I find my interest always increased after I have read the life of my favorite writer, artist or hero.

Let us have to know the source of an idea or thought before you can honestly appraise it.

When I learned of the long suffering and great courage of William Lloyd Garrison, the naturalist, I took new interest in his love of all beauty and of his tenderness toward the birds and animals of the earth. And in every story of his I see him—the big, the brave, the full of heart, the gentle giant!

In times of particular discouragement, get hold of a good biography and read it. And if you read between the lines, life is quite sure to soften much for you.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Mr. Joseph F. Glus writes, "In the past 20 years I have been constantly troubled with constipation. Every remedy I tried would work O. K. for a while—but soon failed. The only remedy I have been able to use steadily with good results have been Carter's Little Liver Pills. I don't guess when I take them—I know I'm going to feel relieved." At all Druggists.

WAR RELICS WILL BE AVAILABLE FOR OHIO CITIES, IS LEARNED

Ohio is soon to get her share of the physical spoils of the late war with Germany. Since the Armistice, officials of the war department at Washington have been busy sorting and separating captured war material and preparing it for the various states of the Union.

Sixty carloads of equipment used on the western front by Hindenburg, Ludendorff and other German leaders, will be distributed among the cities of the Buckeye state.

The equipment will be shipped direct to Columbus to Camp Perry, which will be used as a central distribution point, from which smaller shipments will be made to cities.

The Ohio Archaeological and Historical society has never received its share of the spoils of war and it is expected that the society will be given first choice of this equipment and it will be placed in the new World War wing at the Ohio State University.

Contents of body armor, bayonets, canteens, helmets, lances and rifles, numbering into thousands. Nearly 200 machine guns will be in the collection, one fifty-seven millimeter trench mortar and one anti-tank gun, which were considered rarities by the Yanks who made the captures.

Nearly a thousand swords and sabers of various kinds will be in the collection and among the heavier equipment will be one French 75, converted into an antiaircraft gun by the Germans after capture.

A number of heavy field pieces will be sent to Ohio, including fourteen of the famous German "77's" and one rare gun of the collection will be an Austrian "88," the most feared field piece on the western front, because of its ability to project two shells almost simultaneously. Ohio will get fifteen howitzers of the 105 millimeter type varying in construction. There will be five 120 millimeter guns and sixteen 150 millimeter howitzers of various types. Sixteen of the famous Minnewerfers or "mine throwers" will also be in the collection.

The allocation of these trophies will be made by Governor Donahue after the Archaeological and Historical Society has chosen its display for the state museum.

DISTRICT KIWANIS GOVERNOR GUEST AT CLUB MEETING HERE

Howard Smith, Dayton, District Kiwanis governor, was a guest of the Xenia Kiwanis Club, at the regular meeting in the Goody Shoppe, Tuesday evening. He asked the Xenia Club to be host at the district, inter-city Kiwanis meeting, May 27.

In case the Xenia club decides to entertain the district meeting between 300 and 400 delegates from clubs over a wide territory will come to the city. The club's decision is up to the directors and will be decided within a few days.

Mr. Smith gave a short talk and spoke of the wise investment of men in the "Kiwanis Bond." Every member clips coupons of good fellowship and understanding he said, through his "investment."

Dr. C. P. Proudfoot, pastor of the Second United Presbyterian Church, was the principal speaker of the evening and was introduced by Karl Babb. He delivered his well-known lecture "The Fine Art of Conversation," which has been heard by a number of organizations. He deplored the rut that ordinary conversation is getting into and said that Americans have lost the art of conversing entertainingly or interestingly.

FEDERAL GRAND JURY IN SESSION AGAIN ON LIQUOR LEAKAGE

Mrs. Willebrandt In Hurried Trip To Cleveland To Aid Probers

Cleveland, O., April 22.—Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant United States attorney general and Oliver Pagan, government indictment expert, are expected to be in the jury room today when the second special federal grand jury deliberates further on the leakage of liquor from the Hayner distillery at Troy.

Mrs. Willebrandt made a hurried trip to Cleveland, from St. Louis to attend the opening session, while Pagan arrived as unexpectedly from Washington. Both played an important part in the initial investigation, which resulted in the indictment of ten persons and upset liquor enforcement forces in Ohio.

At least twelve witnesses will be summoned to testify in the present probe, including Abe Ungerleider, whose testimony paved the way to the first ten indictments. It was learned.

The objective of the probing body is to disclose the "higher ups" who were the actual brains of the diversion of thousands of gallons of bonded liquor from the Hayner distillery into bootleg channels, according to statements.

DECLARED DEAD MANY TIMES BUT IS STILL ALIVE SAYS MURRAY

St. Louis, April 22.—James Murray, of St. Louis, says that, while the erroneous report of Mark Twain's death was "greatly exaggerated" once, reports of his own demise have been "horribly distorted" 11 times. Bearing a seemingly charmed life, Murray, who is fifty years old, has survived bullets, a fall of 170 feet, numerous operations and the passing of a heavy motor truck over his body.

Because of his evident immunity from death, physicians call him the "miracle man." His case has attracted surgeons and scientists from various parts of America and also from Europe, and, it is said, he receives considerable remuneration for subjecting himself to pictures and granting interviews to those who would endeavor to determine why he is not numbered among the dead.

According to Murray, his first escape from death occurred at Paducah, Ky., many years ago, when a rope supporting a scaffold on a standpipe that he was painting gave way, hurling him to the roof of a shed 170 feet below. Bleeding and crushed he was taken to a morgue. He said he was perfectly cognizant of what was happening, but was paralyzed and could not make known to the attendants that he still lived. After several hours of both mental and physical torture, during which he had visions of being lowered into an untimely grave, he suddenly regained the use of his legs and kicked the sheet off his body, to the astonishment of the morgue employees.

His body shattered and nerves palpitating from his harrowing experience, Murray spent the greater part of the next three years in hospitals. During this time he submitted to numerous operations and six times was placed behind the hospital death screen in the belief that the coming of the Grim Reaper was but a matter of minutes. He finally gained in health and moved to Mount Carmel, Ill.

One day he strolled into the railroad depot at Mount Carmel, when a man rushed up behind him and began to shoot.

"The first bullet tore out my right eye, after passing through my head," said Murray. "I fell to the floor, but did not lose consciousness. I could see out of my remaining eye until it filled with blood."

"Seeing that I could still move, the fellow placed his pistol close to my body and fired again. This bullet struck me in the shoulder, coursed through my body and lodged at the base of my spine. It is still there."

"Again I was paralyzed, unable to move or talk, and the blood blinded me. They carried me into a room and called the sheriff and the coroner. I heard them say my brain was oozing from my head."

"Then more voices were heard. Someone asked the coroner if I was 'done for.' The coroner replied in the affirmative, and for the second time I heard myself pronounced officially dead. The mental agony was suffering. I had to make them acquainted with my plight in some manner. They learned I was alive, and I was rushed to a hospital at Evansville, Ind."

At Evansville surgeons removed three bullets from Murray and patched his skull together. During all this time Murray retained consciousness.

Although surviving a second time after his life was despaired of, he was left a cripple.

While attempting to negotiate a busy intersection here, he was struck by a heavy truck, which after dragging him for a considerable distance, passed over his prostrate body. He was pronounced dead by the coroner and again removed to the morgue "cooling slab" of the morgue, only to come out of his experience alive and able to tell the world how it feels to dispute the right of way of a juggernaut. "Again many operations were necessary before Murray could be up and on his own again, but a happy disposition and wonderful physical vigor kept him alive."

Although badly battered and a confirmed invalid, Murray holds a cheerful outlook on the world in general.

POSTPONE HEARING IN PROBATE COURT

Hearing in Probate Court of Albert Kendrick, colored, East Church Street, rural mail carrier of the Xenia Postoffice, on a charge of operating an auto while intoxicated, and Lester Roberts, colored, this city, on a charge of intoxication was postponed Wednesday by Judge S. C. Wright until sometime next week because of an over-crowded docket. They were to have been arraigned Wednesday.

The pair was arrested Monday night, when a machine in which they were riding was said to have crashed into a car driven by H. Butler, Dayton, on the Dayton Pike at Xenia, damaging the former's car. Counsel for Kendrick and Roberts denies their clients had intoxicating liquor, claiming bottles confiscated contained rheumatism medicine purchased by Kendrick. Each was released on $500 appearance bond.

Health Hints by the Father of Physical Culture

Just as life is impossible with out vitalized blood, so is health impossible without blood that possesses necessary elements for health. And it follows just as logically that one's vitality will be in exact ratio to the quality of his blood.

All of the tissues of our flesh and bones are made up of infinitely small cells—so small, in fact, that hundreds of them if massed would be invisible across the table. Each cell is born, lives and dies by itself. As fast as a cell dies a new cell is supplied to take its place.

Exercise, even of the slightest, such as opening or closing the hand, uses up the energy material stored up in cells. Any exercise, or even thinking, causes the death of some cells, and Nature immediately supplies new cells to take the place of those that are defunct. One of the important benefits of bodily exercise is that it causes the destruction or death of many all-but-exhausted cells, which in turn, are replaced by cells that are full of life—vitality.

But the cells die, too, in a body that is actually without motion, in a body whose brain is in a state of complete lethargy. The only difference is that in the inactive body the cells do not die as soon as they should nor are the new cells by which they are replaced as healthy as they should be.

All of this repair work in the body is done by the blood. That fluid carries to all of the tissues of the body the fresh matter that is to build up new vitalized cells in the place of those that are dying. This repair material is secreted from the food that is digested in the stomach and in the intestines. Hence the need of the most nourishing of foods. Improper food furnishes but poor repair material. That which goes into the stomach and is digested becomes the actual living body. In this connection I cannot but refer once more to the value of adopting, if not wholly, then partly an uncooked or natural diet. Cooking destroys to a great extent, and sometimes entirely, the cell-life of the food intended to nourish the body. It is reasonable then that this devitalized or dead cell matter will never furnish material of a suitable kind for building up or even repairing the body.

Girl Couldn't Stand Clothes To Touch Her

"My father got me a bottle of May's Wonderful Remedy for stomach trouble and I am feeling so much better since taking it. My stomach was so painful I couldn't stand my clothes to touch me." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Sayre & Hemphill, and druggists everywhere. adv

R-33 Breaks Loose in Storm

The British Zeppelin, R-33, sister ship of the R-34, first dirigible to make a round trip across the Atlantic, broke loose from her mooring mast at Pulham, Norfolk, Eng., during a terrific gale, and was swept out over the North Sea. The accident was almost identical with that sustained by the American dirigible Shenandoah, which was torn from its mooring mast at the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J. The R-33, which has been undergoing extensive alterations for a year, was shortly to have been flown to India. She is pictured here moored to the very mast from which she broke loose. There were twenty men on board.

MODISH MITZI—Dad Has A Fight On His Hands

By JAY V. JAY

Mitzi is particularly demure. Or perhaps it is the effect of her little felt hat and choker collar of fox fur. At least Dad had no suspicion of her good intentions when she asked him to take a stroll with her.

Something has happened, though, for here is Dad explosively indignant. The question seems to be: "Is he to be allowed to buy his own clothes or is he not?" The answer is, he is not, although he does very well.

They compromise and Mitzi buys him some new ties and handkerchiefs. They are all made to match—handkerchief, bow-knot tie and four-in-hand. All made of the same tiny-figured foulard silk. The reason for all this—is that Dad is expecting a guest and Mitzi has decided to be sure he does himself credit. He will buy this hat, too—because Mitzi thinks he is such a dear and looks so handsome. Besides it is a good hat!

MRS. MARY BROWN-LEWERS

Some improvements in frying

BY MRS. MARY BROWN-LEWERS

Mrs. Brown-Lewers is conducting the popular Gazette-Republican Cooking School classes. In this article Mrs. Brown-Lewers explains how she fries food so deliciously, and gives four valuable recipes.

Whenever I think of the frying pan, I think of Crisco, the digestible vegetable shortening and cooking fat—for I have found Crisco as big a help in my work (especially frying) as the frying pan is.

With-Crisco I can fry everything without any smoke. When I am through I can save every drop of the Crisco for the next fry, no matter what it is, because Crisco doesn't absorb the taste of foods cooked in it. You would never know it was used before.

And I have found that the foods I fry in Crisco are the tastiest I have ever eaten—the most attractive, too. They are never greasy either, as Crisco doesn't stick to the foods. It simply cooks them in a delicious way as any of my recipes below will show you. For the same reasons I always use Crisco for deep frying.

As a matter of fact, I use Crisco for all my work in my cooking classes. My Crisco pie-crusts are always light and flaky. I like Crisco for cakes, too, because they come out even and whole and never fall. Almost everyone who tastes them thinks they are made with butter.

Hashed Brown Potatoes

(With or without green peppers)

Delicious either way and you can fry them to a lovely golden brown in Crisco without smoke or scorching.

6 medium size cold boiled potatoes
3 raw green peppers
Crisco
Salt and pepper

Chop potatoes fine, season with salt and pepper. Remove seeds and stems from peppers. Wash, drain and chop fine. Mix with potatoes. Put in enough Crisco to completely cover the bottom of the frying pan. Heat slowly. When hot add potatoes and cook slowly, stirring occasionally with a fork. When partly brown fold into omelet shape in one side of the frying pan. Fry until a rich brown. Turn out on platter, keeping the omelet shape.

Fish

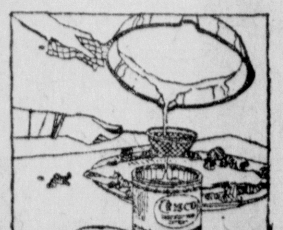

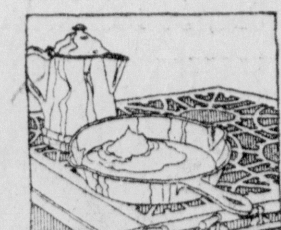

(5 New Hints)

- 1 Use enough Crisco to partly cover the fish
- 2 Fry slowly and do not turn until almost done
- 3 Turn only once

Fried without smoke; fried without wasting left over Crisco; fried without breaking. Don't be afraid to use plenty of Crisco. It won't be wasted even when fish is fried in it. Simply strain it back into the can and use it again.

Clean the fish, leaving it whole or cut in steaks. Wash in cold water and dry in a towel. Dust with salt and pepper, roll in flour or cornmeal, and put into the frying pan when the Crisco is hot. Use a pancake turner to turn. Garnish with parsley and lemon.

How to fry without smoke:

1 Put Crisco into cold frying pan. To thoroughly cook the food (for example, a fish) without smoke or scorching, fry slowly, using enough Crisco to partly cover it. It will not require the constant attention frying does when only a little fat is used. The Crisco will not be wasted. You can use it again for frying other things.

2 Put frying pan over low heat. As soon as Crisco is melted put in a small piece of bread. As soon as bread starts to brown put in the fish.

3 Cook slowly until fish is nearly done, then turn to brown the other side. With plenty of Crisco in the pan the fish is easily turned without breaking, if you wait until it is almost done.

4 Strain the Crisco into an empty can and use it for the next thing you want to fry. No one will know you have fried fish in it.

LEMON JUICE WHITENS SKIN

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchar'd White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quart-er-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

Freaks of Noted Disasters

RUNAWAY houses, pursued and recaptured by swift motor boats; children asleep on a mattress blown high into a tree; a squawking rooster jammed head first into a water pitcher; heads of cattle blown across a wide bay; a field of corn completely mowed by flying iron—

These are some of the authentic freaks of disasters. They will seem incredible only to those who have not been through the unforgettable experience of a tornado, hurricane or flood. Some of the strangest phenomena on record have resulted from tornadoes, those gigantic whirling devils of the sky whose terrific force throws buildings about as a boy throws pebbles.

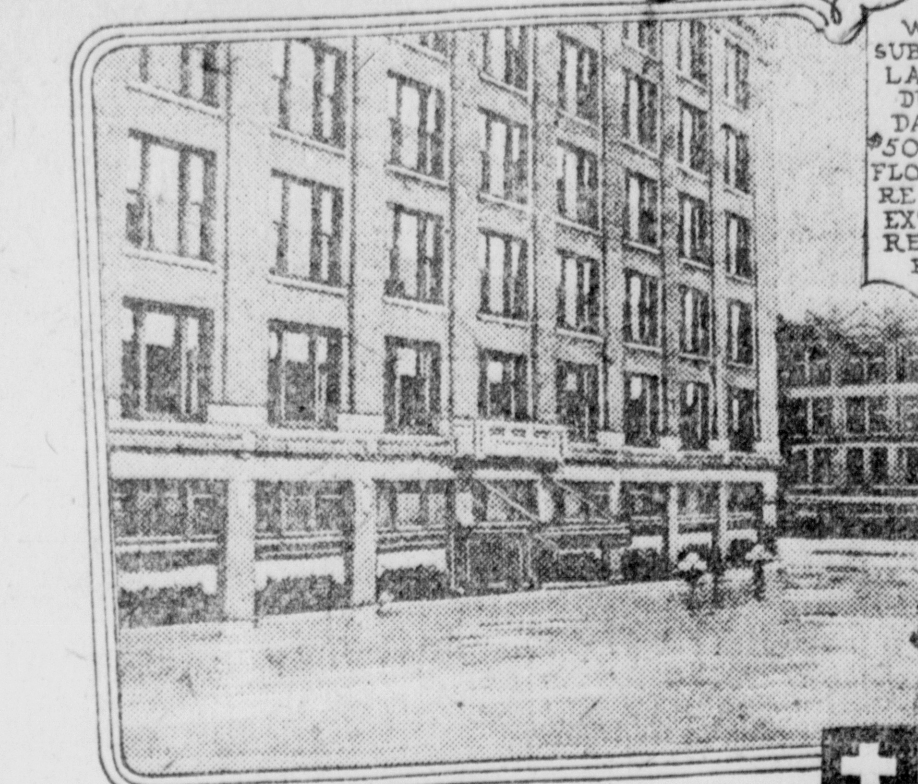

In the administration of the relief task following all major disasters in recent years, workers of the American Red Cross have witnessed the strangest of happenings as a result of the unleashing of nature's mighty forces. Often these workers are the first outside aid to arrive on the scene and are personal witnesses of events that would seem rightfully to belong only in the realm of fiction.

Every one of the strange happenings recounted in this narrative has either been directly witnessed by Red Cross Relief workers or else bear the stamp of verity given by meticulous investigation. Henry M. Baker, National Director of Red Cross Disaster Relief, has personally interviewed most of the persons involved.

One victim of a tornado's wildest whims was an old Italian named Tony, who ran a fruit stand in Atlanta, Texas. Tony had been picked up in the giant arms of the great storm, carried through the air a quarter of a mile and then dropped feet first into a well. That would have been the end of the story had not one of those strange coincidences happened that often attend the passing of the twister. By the same tremendous rotary motion that causes such terrible damage to everything in its path, the tornado sucked more than three feet of water out of the well, leaving Tony's head still above the surface. The dual action saved the old Italian and when he was rescued hours later he apparently had suffered only a few cuts and bruises. The aftermath of this terrifying experience, however, was a nervous collapse which yielded only to long and expert treatment.

One of the inexplicable features of tornadoes is their uncanny penchant for sparing the most fragile things. Recently the great tornado in Northern Ohio picked up a house at Lorain and literally stood it on its roof. From an inverted chandelier hung four electric globes, not one of which was even cracked.

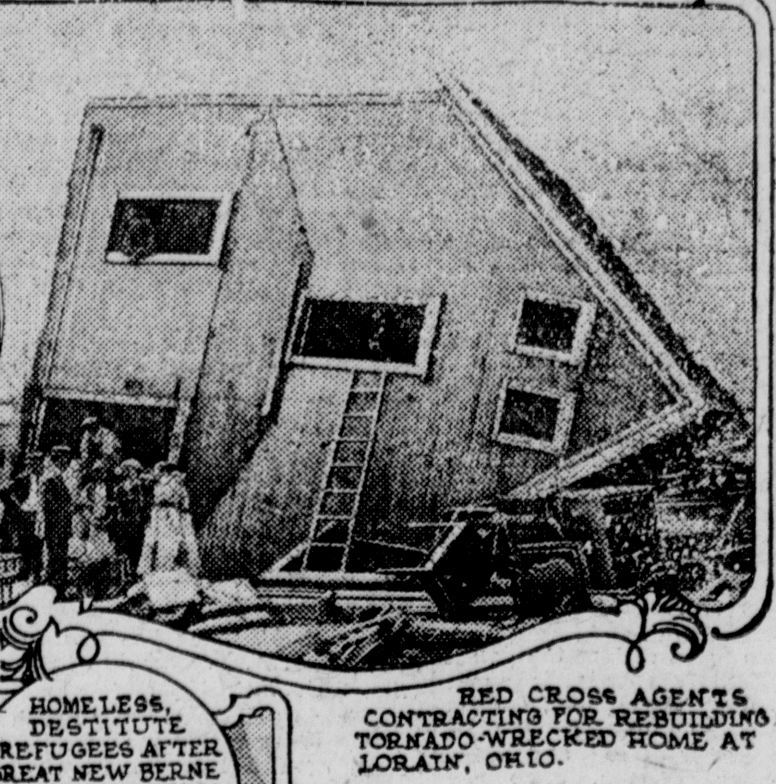

Another and even more remarkable instance of this tendency occurred following the passage of a twister through the town of Biev-ins, Ark. Searching amidst the ruins of a completely demolished home, a Red Cross nurse heard the frantic squawking of a rooster. The most minute search failed to reveal the bird until the nurse's eye fell on a water pitcher that was shaking violently back and forth. Attracted by this strange phenomenon, she found the trouble. It was necessary for her to crack the unbroken pitcher with a stone to release a very bedraggled Chanticleer, who, completely defaithered by the terrible wind, had then been jammed head first into the pitcher.

So far as is known, the highest wind velocity attained during the height of a cyclone or tornado is 212 miles an hour. This terrific speed must have been approached when, on August 27, 1924, a violent hurricane swept in from the Caribbean Sea and over parts of the Virgin Islands. Of a large herd of cattle, 22 steers were blown across Coral Bay and into a pasture on the opposite side. They were found lying dead in a row some distance inland from the water. In a demolished village on the shores of the bay, a Red Cross field representative tells of a native family with eleven children whose home had been completely destroyed. When it became light enough to count the children two were found to be missing and were later found, still asleep, on their mattress, which had been blown high into a tree.

"Anything can happen during a cyclone or tornado," is the expressed belief of Red Cross Disaster Relief workers. Their years of experience in the field sooner or later make them think nothing impossible. During a series of cyclonic storms that ravaged several Southern States in the Fall of 1923

one family in a small town in South Carolina saw the ominous funnel-shaped cloud coming. Looking arms, they threw themselves face downward on the bed in their small cabin. The tornado struck, with a fearful roar. A few moments later the cowering figures felt a heavy jar, followed by silence. Gathering courage they stood up and looked about them. The roof and sides of the house were gone. Nothing was left but the floor upon which they stood. Investigating further, they found that they were nearly a quarter of a mile away from the site of their home. The tornado had carried away the floor supporting them and the bed, and dropped the whole business in an apple orchard.

In the National Museum in Washington is the trunk of a tree that had been completely severed by rifle bullets fired during one of the great battles of the Civil War. People are frequently amazed by the peculiar way in which tornadoes destroy trees, which are not uprooted, as one would imagine, but twisted off a few feet above the ground. This undoubtedly is due to the rotary motion of the funnel-shaped cloud, which revolves at terrific speed, grinding up everything in its path and then disgorges. Authentic instances are on record of straws having been driven through tree stumps by tornadoes. The Chamber of Commerce at Hope, Ark., has as a relic the trunk of a large tree nearly severed by a piece of flying tin as large as a telephone book.

Outside of a small town in Texas a fine stand of corn, covering nearly 30 acres, was mowed down, not by the tornado itself, but by sheets of galvanized iron hurled out of a wrecked hardware store nearly half a mile away.

At Texarkana, Texas, a cyclone drove a piece of four inch water pipe through the neck of a horse making a clean cut hole through which a person could look to the other side. Despite the injury the horse lived for three days.

Sometimes, though it must be admitted, not often, a disaster is not an unmitigated tragedy. Occasionally, it replaces in kind what it has taken away. Witness a flood at Burlington, Kansas, which picked up a fine new garage and carried it far down stream, only to bring another one from up the river and lay it in the back yard almost on the very site of its lost companion. A similar occurrence took place during the Lorain tornado, which picked up and threw into Lake Erie a touring car parked by its owner in an adjoining lot, and by way of compensation presented him with a nearly new sedan. During a Kansas flood a dry goods dealer had practically his entire stock ruined by flood waters 14 feet deep. In an ironic gesture of reparation the swirling waters washed a popcorn stand through the plate glass windows at the front of the store and parked it on a balcony in the rear.

Miraculous escapes, with death surging all around, have spared the lives of many people caught in disasters. In the great flood at Pueblo, Colo., two years ago, a desperate mother, with her little two-year-old girl in her arms, climbed the footspikes of a telegraph pole. As the waters slowly mounted, she climbed higher. For hours she hung on successfully, but the raging waters finally tore her child from her deadened arms. Rescuers in a skiff who saw her plight hours later experienced the greatest difficulty in releasing the nearly demented woman from the pole. Her convulsive grasp had to be pried loose. The climax of the story was reached when Red Cross workers found the little daughter, alive and kicking, where she had been washed up on the top of an overturned freight car.

Three members of a family escaped death during a tornado in Oklahoma despite the fact that the entire upper part of the house fell in on them. Rescuers were astonished to hear their cries emerging from the hopeless ruins of their home. But what was the amazement of a Red Cross volunteer to find that father, mother and son were practically unscathed! When the storm first struck, the three had taken refuge under the baby grand piano, but this capsize, in falling, however, it was checked by the piano stool, the whole making a pyramid which successfully turned aside the falling wreckage. Except for being nearly suffocated by dust from broken plaster, the family was practically unharmed.

The "psychological moment" figured in saving from a terrible death a woman in the same tornado-swept town. When her house began to rock under the force of the twister, she said to her husband: "I must get Johnny to a safe place." Stopping over to pick up the child, who was playing on the floor with a toy, saved her life. At the very moment she stooped a section of brick chimney torn off the house next door smashed through the wall of the room and shot out through the window, exactly as a shell from a cannon. Had she not bent over at that second, she would have been headed.

One of the strangest situations ever encountered by Red Cross Disaster Relief workers was met during the great Ohio floods. The town of Future City, Ill., was literally wiped off the map. Every house and outbuilding was torn from its site and sent reeling down the Ohio River, like a great herd of bathing elephants.

Crowds lining the straining levees were then spectators to a chase that probably has no parallel in history. Red Cross Relief workers manned a fleet of motor boats and rushed in all directions after the runaway houses. A boat would dash alongside a house, the crew would deftly attach a hawser to it and then, with racing motor, the "tug" and her strange tow would go slowly back, bucking the flood waters, to Future City, where the dwelling would be anchored to a projecting tree or telegraph pole and the home savers would dash off for more houses.

In order that it may be always prepared to rush quick and adequate relief in any emergency at any time, the Red Cross within the past year has established a Mobile Disaster Unit. This corps of disaster relief experts is kept in readiness at all times to respond to a moment's notice to the call for assistance from stricken communities anywhere in the United States. Recently the Government placed at the disposal of this unit the firing corps of the Army, Navy and Post office Aviation services, thus insuring the quickest possible dispatch of Red Cross relief experts to the scene of disaster.

THIS YEAR BETTER THAN LAST BABSON SAYS IN OUTLOOK

Babson Park Mass. April 17, 1925. In view of the recent gymnastics of the stock market, Roger W. Babson was today asked his opinion on the situation. Mr. Babson's official statement is as follows:

"Recent stock market movements have of course been a source of worry, if not loss, to those who are carrying stocks on borrowed money and especially those who are carrying stocks on margins. Such men must expect to worry; but there need be no wrong for the man who has good securities paid for in his safe deposit box. The real cause for the stock market break was that too many people were trying to get something for nothing. Gambling in the stock market had become so profitable for a time that 'everyone' was in it and too many had become over-extended and were in too deeply. This is not dangerous when one owns securities outright, but it is always dangerous to bet with borrowed money. Personally I have some doubts as to the ethics of gambling in the stock market, but will not discuss them here.

"Of course brokers' loans were abnormally high having reached an estimated figure of $2,200,000,000 when the market broke a few weeks ago. Today, however, they are down to $1,600,000,000. European conditions are not quite as favorable as they were a few months ago. The death of President Ebert of Germany and the financial position of France are both temporarily disquieting. My knowledge of German conditions, however, makes me believe that German affairs are in the hands of strong and sound men. As to France's finances, there is nothing new in the situation. France's present financial condition has been known for years. Even the St. Paul reversionary should not excite investors. The St. Paul property is better even now than it has been for years and some day there will be a chance to make a tremendous amount of money in connection with this reorganization. Against these adverse factors we have been slowly improving business conditions, a fair crop situation and very easy money."

It was then pointed out to Mr. Babson that although the above factors apply to the stock market situation, they do not explain the slackness in general trade. To this point Mr. Babson replied as follows:

"It should be remembered that the American people live in the Temperate Zone and consequently are subject to two modes of living: winter and summer. Moreover, the difference in temperature makes a great difference in the purchases of these people, ranging from fur coats to thin cotton dresses. Hence the climate is a tremendous factor in retail trade. Climate moreover is the great factor in determining the crops and hence the purchasing power of the people; as well as a factor in determining the purchasing needs of the people. Now everyone knows what the weather has been this winter and spring. In most parts of the country it has been exceedingly abnormal and has upset all calculations. In other words, the weather since Christmas has been detrimental to business. Of course similar conditions may continue thru the balance of the year, but the law of averages suggests a change. It must not be forgotten that real satisfactory business weather would improve retail trade as much as this abnormal business weather has retarded it.

"Of course the textile situation is very bad while the shoe and leather industries are not doing well. Manufacturing capacity in many lines is greater than our power to absorb. Considering the fact that most plants make their money on the last 25 percent of capacity, it is not surprising that profits are very small when so many plants are operating only 75 percent capacity. On the other hand, business men need not be disturbed because manufacturers, jobbers and merchants are buying hand to mouth. This is not due to lack of funds or lack of confidence; but rather to the great improvement in the transportation systems of the country. Goods were originally bought in large quantities because merchants received their goods by freight only about four times a year. This situation has gradually changed in that now fast freights are coming thru daily. The improvement in railroad transportation, the introduction of auto truck delivery and other factors, now make it unnecessary for manufacturers and merchants to carry large stocks. This is nothing to worry about because it tends to eliminate speculation and hence fundamentally is a good thing. It is possible that 1925 may be a quiet year. It may take several quiet years before the great inflation of war times has been fully readjusted. But there is nothing now to worry about and I am willing to stake my reputation that 1925 will be a better year than 1924 taking in all sections of the country and all lines of industry.

"Of course we should not be surprised to see business fluctuate widely according to stock market and weather barometers. As we went up too far above normal line, the Babson chart reaching 7 percent above normal in February, so it would not be surprising if we dropped considerably below the normal line for a month or two now. All of this however should average very satisfactory and I am sure that when the close of this year comes the business line for 1925 will run higher than 1924. These better results, however, will not come of themselves. We must work harder; both employers and wage workers must take a greater interest in their work; while all of us must seek to give greater value for the dollar we receive. When we again look upon business as a service and respon-

REMOVAL OF M'COOK FIELD WILL START JULY 1 IS REPORT

Removal of the McCook Field airport to the new site east of Dayton, partly in Greene and partly in Montgomery County territory, will begin about July 1, when contracts for the construction work on the new field will be let, according to Major C. E. Walton, quartermaster representative, who has been ordered to this district to supervise the work.

A visit was paid McCook Field Tuesday by Major Walton and a group of Washington, D. C. prominent officials to make a preliminary inspection of plans.

It is believed that Dayton contractors will be asked to take the contract. Bids will be asked for as soon as an office is established at Dayton, and the award will be made by the quartermaster general at Washington, according to Major Walton.

Major Walton intimated that the $500,000 appropriation of congress was already available and actual work of construction at the new site will get under way when final detail plans are in shape.

The first step will be to grade the existing field and sites for erection of buildings, followed by installation of heat, power, gas, water and electricity by the laying of underground pipes, it is said. The initial congressional appropriation covers only ground work on the project.

With several veterans back on the team, Cedarville's chances of coping the Wittenberg clash are considered excellent.

BRINGING UP FATHER

Michael's Marriage

By MICHAEL

CHAPTER XXII

The clock was well on its way toward 4 o'clock when Michael returned to his office. He grinned foolishly in the direction of Inglesby, and explained: "Huh. I got kept longer than I expected. Anything come up?"

"Nothing, except that the president was looking for you." The assistant's tone was slightly sarcastic.

"Does he want to see me now?"

"He said he would like to see you if you come back today." Inglesby's sarcasm reached Michael. The latter regarded him coldly for a moment, then turned toward Arthur Manning's office. "Oh, well," he thought, "ing is getting cocky because he's going to get my job and has an idea he'll keep it—we'll see about that."

He was forced to await Arthur Manning's pleasure in the ante-room, with Louise Wentzel endeavoring to be sociable. He nodded indifferently at whatever she said, and answered her queries with unenthusiastic yeses or noes. His mind was elsewhere. He was musing over the fact he had told Lilah Pharely he didn't know whether he was going to Chicago; when there was no doubt that he was going. He had a feeling that an irresistible force was drawing him there.

"Perhaps, after all, it is best," he told himself. "A few weeks' separation will be a test of my love for her."

He was thinking now of his mother's deathbed injunction: "After you've found the girl you want to marry, ask her and wait a while. Six months isn't too long."

He wondered if his mother would have liked Lilah.

Arthur Manning greeted him brusquely. "I suppose you're all ready to go," he said. "I want to have a long talk with you Saturday morning about our situation in Chicago. I'm greatly interested in this venture of yours. I know you father would want you to undertake something of this sort. He was a great salesman himself. Yes, sir, he made this company."

Michael waited skeptically for Manning to get to his point. It was revealed a moment later.

"I just happened to think a little while ago that you might not be able to attend the stockholders' meeting. I'll be glad to act as your proxy, if you like."

Michael responded coolly. "Thanks, but I'm planning on coming over for the meeting. I'll have to be in town about that time any way."

"Well, in case you shouldn't happen to turn up, it would be a good idea if I had your proxy available."

Michael smiled slightly. "Yes, I'll attend to it before I go away." He was reminded that he must mail his proxy to Alonzo Capper with final instructions. Whew! Wouldn't Arthur Manning be surprised when Lonnie turned up in the stockholders' meeting!

He was elated by Manning's disappointment, apparent now.

Only Lilah Pharely was at the station to see him off. He had maneuvered Lonnie Capper out of the idea of being present. Of course Alonzo suspected the reason why his presence would be unwelcome.

Michael and Lilah stood silently in the concourse of the station, arm in arm, watching the stream that filtered through the revolving doors of the entrance. Their thoughts were far away; neither, strangely, was thinking of the other. Michael's mind was full of the prospect of enjoying Chicago, and Lilah, her imagination fired by an advertisement on a board in a corner, was wishing that she was in California.

When Michael's train was called, the pair glanced expectantly at each other then walked slowly toward the gates. Out there, Michael's hand sought Lilah's, and the little squeeze he gave it was more eloquent than words.

They stood facing each other, chattering nervously of unimportant things, giggling and laughing at everything, until the last of the line of passengers was passing through the gates. Each was wishing that the scene was over. "I'll be seeing you again soon" Michael said.

"I hope so, Michael; and you must write every day."

"I will, Lilah. . . . Goodbye!"

He hurriedly bent over and kissed her; then hurried, shame-faced, through the gates, but did not turn until he was boarding the train. Then he waved at her and quickly disappeared.

PEAS THAT ARE A TREAT

At any eason of the year you can have the pleasure of peas that are as sweet, as tender and as fresh tasted as if they had been brought from the garden directly to your table. They are uniformly small in size and uniform in color and tenderness. They are the very first picking of the 1924 crop of Wisconsin grown peas and are far superior to peas grown later in the season when weather conditions were unfavorable. They are just the kind of peas careful housekeepers are proud to serve—no hard tasteless ones among them. Try them and see how good they are.
